to rely on newspapers rather than other kinds of documents, does that apply to this -- to the report you ended up doing, or would that only apply to the effort you thought you were going to be doing in looking at the redistricting in 2021?

A It refers primarily to what I thought I was going to be examining, but ended up not being asked to address.

Q Now, are you offering an opinion about discriminatory intent behind the 2021 redistricting?

A No.

Q Are you offering any opinion about the design of the districts that were adopted in 2021?

A I'm sorry. The districts that were adopted when?

Q In 2021.

A Could you repeat your question, so I'm sure I'm answering the question I thought I heard?

Q Are you offering an opinion about the design of the districts that were adopted in 2021?

A No.

Q Okay. At the top of page 6, you talk about your voting rights law course at George Washington law school. Tell me about that course.

A It's a course that considers the evolution of
