MOTION BY PETERSBURG PLAINTIFFS FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE ISSUE OF COMPACTNESS

Plaintiffs City of Petersburg, Mark L. Jensen, Nancy C. Strand, and Brenda L. Norheim ("Petersburg Plaintiffs"), pursuant to the provisions of Rule 56 of the Alaska Rules of Civil Procedure, hereby move for partial summary judgment that the Redistricting Board ("Board") committed an error in redistricting, in that Proclamation Plan House District 32 does not meet the compactness standard in Alaska Const. art. VI, §6, and nothing in the Voting Rights Act justifies any deviation from that compactness standard in the districting of Southeast Alaska. The motion is supported by the accompanying memorandum, exhibits, and Affidavit of Leonard Lawson.

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION BY PETERSBURG PLAINTIFFS FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE ISSUE OF COMPACTNESS

I. Introduction and Summary.

Plaintiffs City of Petersburg, Mark L. Jensen, Nancy C. Strand, and Brenda L. Norheim ("Petersburg Plaintiffs") move for partial summary judgment that the Redistricting Board ("Board") committed an error in redistricting. Contrary to Alaska Const. art. VI, §6, the redistricting plan adopted by the Board ("Proclamation Plan") established house districts in Southeast Alaska which are not compact, as demonstrated by the greater compactness achieved in the alternative redistricting plan for Southeast Alaska that is presented herewith ("Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan"). In particular, all of the Southeast Alaska districts in the Modified RIGHTS

This alternative plan is identical to the redistricting plan presented to the Board by RIGHTS Coalition. which appears on the Board's website http://www.akredistricting.org/Files/Submitted%20Plans/RightsCoalition FairandBala nced.pdf, except for the removal of the City and Borough of Yakutat ("Yakutat") from House District 4 proposed in the RIGHTS Coalition Plan. As will be demonstrated below, removing Yakutat from the RIGHTS Coalition Plan's House District 4 does not substantially change the demographics of that district. However, the districting of Southeast Alaska in the resulting Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan is precisely coextensive with the districting of Southeast Alaska in the Proclamation Plan, and thus does not affect any Proclamation Plan house district outside Southeast Alaska.

Coalition Plan are substantially more compact than Proclamation Plan House District 32, in which the City of Petersburg is located. In Southeast Alaska, no deviation from the compactness standard of Alaska Const. art. VI, §6 is required to comply with the federal Voting Rights Act. Therefore, the Board committed an error in redistricting by deviating from the compactness standard in Alaska Const. art. VI, §6 in its districting of Southeast Alaska.

II. The Article VI, §6 Compactness Standard.

Article VI, §6 of the Alaska Constitution provides in relevant part that "[e]ach house district shall be formed of contiguous and compact territory containing as nearly as practicable a relatively integrated socio-economic area." Compactness and contiguousness are the most important criteria for redistricting under Article VI, §6 of the Alaska Constitution:

Priority [in redistricting] must be given first to the Federal Constitution, second to the federal voting rights act, and third to the requirements of article VI, section 6 of the Alaska Constitution. The requirements of Article VI, section 6 shall receive priority inter se in the following order: (1) contiguousness and compactness, (2) relative socioeconomic integration, (3) consideration of local government boundaries, (4) use of drainage and other geographic features in describing boundaries.²

Thus, where neither the Federal Constitution nor the Voting Rights Act requires the Board to deviate from the Alaska Constitution's compactness standard, compactness is the first standard with which the Plan of Redistricting must comply.

² In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 143 n. 2 (Alaska 2002), quoting Hickel v. Southeast Conference, 846 P.2d 38, 62 (Alaska 1992).

The term "compact," as used in the Alaska Constitution means, "...having a small perimeter in relation to the area encompassed." The Alaska Court has further determined that:

The most compact shape is a circle. Since it is not possible to divide Alaska into circles, it is obvious that the constitution calls only for relative compactness."

When analyzing compactness, the court should "look to the relative compactness of proposed and possible districts in determining whether a district is sufficiently compact." The following example of compactness analysis appears in the opinion reviewing the 2001 redistricting plan:

House District 16 violates the compactness requirement of article VI, section 6 of the Alaska Constitution. House District 16 contains a bizarrely-shaped appendage in the southwestern portion of the district. The inclusion of this appendage is unnecessary to further any other requirement of article VI, section 6, and alternative plans considered by the board contained more compact and otherwise constitutional versions of House District 16.6

As the Petersburg Plaintiffs will demonstrate below, the Southeast Alaska house districts in at least one alternative redistricting plan—the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan—are significantly more compact than Proclamation Plan House District 32, and the less compact Proclamation Plan House District 32 is unnecessary to further any other redistricting requirement that has precedence over compactness. Therefore, the Proclamation Plan House District 32 violates the compactness requirement of article IV, §6 of the Alaska Constitution.

III. Proclamation Plan House District 32 Does Not Meet the Compactness Standard in Article VI, §6 of the Alaska Constitution.

Each of the four house districts for Southeast Alaska in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan is substantially more compact than Proclamation Plan House District 32.7 Moreover, Proclamation Plan House District 32 surrounds three sides of House District 31, which contains a portion of the City and Borough of Juneau, and contains odd appendages that reach across bodies of water to incorporate the communities of Gustavus and Tenakee Springs.8 To make a clearer, apples-toapples comparison of the compactness of the RIGHTS Coalition Plan's districting of Southeast Alaska with that of the Proclamation Plan, for purposes of this memorandum the RIGHTS Coalition Plan was modified to exclude Yakutat from RIGHTS Coalition Plan House District 4.9 The Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan and the Proclamation Plan each divide the same area constituting Southeast Alaska into four house districts—the two plans differ only in the manner of that division. As the table below demonstrates, each Southeast Alaska house district in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan also meets the one person, one vote standard under the United States and Alaska Constitutions, and one of those districts, House District 2, has substantially the same percentage Native voting age population as Proclamation Plan House District 34. Thus, the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan's districting of Southeast Alaska may be substituted for that of the Proclamation Plan without affecting any other district in the Proclamation Plan.

Leonard S. Lawson computed the compactness of each Southeast Alaska house district in the Proclamation Plan and each Southeast Alaska house district in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan using the Reock Compactness Test ("Reock Test"). 10 The Reock Test quantifies the compactness of a district by determining the ratio of the area of the district to the area of the smallest circle that contains the district. 11 Thus, a perfectly circular area would have Reock Test measurement of 1.00, and the more the shape of an area deviates from a circle the lower its Reock Test measurement will be, with measurement of 0.00 indicating the greatest deviation The test's use of a circle as the standard for from perfect compactness. 12 compactness is consistent with the Alaska Supreme Court's adoption of the circle as the ideal for compactness under Alaska Const. art VI, §6.13

Southeast Alaska is composed of Districts 31, 32, 33, and 34 in the Proclamation Plan, 14 and Districts 1, 2, 3 and 4 in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition The following table displays total population, deviation from ideal district population, percentage Native voting age population, and compactness measured by comparison to the Southeast Alaska house districts in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan,²⁰ Proclamation Plan House District 32 is not sufficiently compact to meet the compactness standard of Alaska Const. art. VI, §6.

IV. Redistricting in Southeast Alaska and the Voting Rights Act.

A. Introduction.

As stated above, the Voting Rights Act precedes the compactness requirement in the hierarchy of legal standards for reviewing a redistricting plan. Thus, a redistricting plan may deviate from the compactness requirement of Alaska Const. art. VI, §6 to the extent that the deviation is required for the redistricting plan to comply with the Voting Rights Act:

Article VI, cl. 2 of the United States Constitution provides that, "This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof ... shall be the supreme law of the land...." This mandates that provisions of state law, including state constitutional law, are void if they conflict with federal law. To the extent that the requirements of article VI, section 6 of the Alaska Constitution are inconsistent with the Voting Rights Act, those requirements must give way. However, to the extent that those requirements are not inconsistent, they must be given effect. The Voting Rights Act need not be elevated in stature so that the requirements of the Alaska Constitution are unnecessarily compromised.

The Board must first design a reapportionment plan based on the requirements of the Alaska Constitution. That plan then must be tested against the Voting Rights Act. A reapportionment plan may minimize article VI, section 6 requirements when minimization is the only means available to satisfy Voting Rights Act requirements.²¹

Thus, compliance with the Voting Rights Act justifies a deviation from the Alaska Constitution's compactness requirement only to the extent that the deviation is necessary for Voting Rights Act compliance. The deviation of Proclamation Plan House District 34 from the Alaska Constitution's compactness standard is not required for compliance with any Voting Rights Act requirement.

²⁰ Hickel, 846 P.2d at 45.

²¹ HickeÍ, 846 P.2d at 52 n. 22 (emphasis added).

B. Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act and the Proclamation Plan.

Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. §1973c, requires Alaska, among other jurisdictions, to obtain a determination from either the Attorney General of the United States or the United States District Court for the District of Columbia that any change affecting voting, including a redistricting plan, which it seeks to enforce does not have a discriminatory purpose and will not have a discriminatory effect. A redistricting plan has such an effect if it "would lead to a retrogression in the position of racial minorities with respect to their effective exercise of the electoral franchise." Specifically, subsection (b) of Section 5 provides:

(b) Any voting qualification or prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice, or procedure with respect to voting that has the purpose or will have the effect of diminishing the ability of any citizens of the United States on account of race or color, or in contravention of the guarantees set forth in section 1973b(f)(2) of this title [regarding members of language minority groups], to elect their preferred candidates of choice denies or abridges the right to vote within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

In anticipation of the Section 5 preclearance requirement, the Board retained an expert on the Voting Rights Act to guide the Board in complying with Section 5.

This expert, Dr. Lisa Handley, submitted her analysis of the Proclamation Plan under the Voting Rights Act, which is part of the Board record ("Handley Report").²³ Dr. Handley described the purpose of her analysis as follows:

The burden of proof rests with the state to demonstrate that the proposed plan will not result in a retrogression of minority voting strength relative to the current, or benchmark, redistricting plan.²

²In Beer v. United States, the US Supreme held that "the purpose of Section 5 has always been to insure that no voting-procedure changes would be made that would lead to a retrogression in the position of racial minorities with respect to their effective exercise of the electoral franchise." 425 U.S. 130, 141 (1976). The benchmark redistricting plan against which a proposed plan is compared is the last legally enforceable plan (inevitably the redistricting plan currently in place) with the demographics of the 2010 census data associated with each of the districts.²⁴

In the Proclamation Plan, Dr. Handley identified House Districts 36, 37, 38, 39, and 40 as "the same number of districts that provide Alaska Natives with the opportunity to elect Alaska Native-preferred candidates as the Benchmark Plan."²⁵ Dr. Handley also identified Proclamation Plan Senate Districts S and T as majority Alaska Native districts, and Senate District R as an "effective" district.²⁶ None of these districts is located in Southeast Alaska. Thus, this portion of Dr. Handley's Voting Rights Act analysis indicates that the Voting Rights Act has no bearing on the districting of Southeast Alaska.

However, after she identified five house districts in the Benchmark Plan that provided Alaska Natives with the opportunity to elect Alaska Native-preferred candidates, Dr. Handley continued as follows:

²³ Report of Dr. Lisa Handley (ARB00013329-00013369).

²⁴ Handley Report, 2 (ARB00013330).

Handley Report, 28-29 (ARB00013356-00013357).
Handley Report, 30-31 (ARB00013358-00013359).

In addition to these five house districts with substantial Alaska Native populations, there is a district in Southeast Alaska (House District 5) that is approximately one third Alaska Native and has elected an Alaska Native to legislative office throughout the decade—albeit not always the Alaska Native-preferred Alaska Native candidate. 27

The Board's report accompanying its Redistricting Proclamation also took up this theme:

Another difficult challenge faced by the Board was caused by the significant population loss in Southeast Alaska. This required the region to lose one House district and half of a Senate district. It was also necessary to create an Alaska Native "influence" district in the region, House District 34, in order to comply with the federal Voting Rights Act.²⁸

Finally, the Board's Preclearance Submission to the Department of Justice advances two arguments why the Proclamation Plan's redistricting of Southeast Alaska was required for compliance with the Voting Rights Act:

Southeast Alaska lost significant population (for example Benchmark District 5 was under populated by 22.02%) thus requiring the region to lose one House district and half of a Senate district. The Board was still able to maintain a district with a significant Alaska Native population which is likely an Alaska Native "influence" district. House District 34 has a total Alaska Native population of 36.96% and an Alaska Native VAP of 32.85%. While several of the alternative plans had a Southeast Alaska Native District with a slightly higher (0.5 to 2.5%) total Alaska Native and Alaska Native VAP, the Board determined that it was more important to keep the incumbent Alaska Native Legislator from the Benchmark Alaska Native District in the Proclamation Alaska Native District and avoid pairing him with a non-Alaska Native incumbent.²⁹

Report to Accompany Redistricting Proclamation of June 13, 2011, 7 (ARB00000581).

²⁷ Id.

Preclearance Submission of the 2011 Alaska State House and Senate Redistricting Plan by the Alaska Redistricting Board under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, August 9, 2011, 12 (ARB00006356-11791).

Neither of the Board's arguments has merit.

C. The Voting Rights Act Does Not Require Protection of an Incumbent Legislator.

Nothing in the Voting Rights Act requires that a redistricting plan protect an incumbent legislator, whether or not a minority group member, from pairing with another incumbent:

The Voting Rights Act does not protect minority incumbents; it protects minority voters. It is thus a dangerous business to conflate a politician's assessment of her own continued electoral prospects with the genuine protection of African American voting strength.³⁰

Moreover, nothing in the Voting Rights Act requires the placement of a particular incumbent, minority or otherwise, in a "minority influence" district. "In sum, the Voting Rights Act protects the minority voters' opportunity to elect their candidate of choice, not just a minority incumbent and not just the minority's opportunity to elect an incumbent of any race."³¹ Thus, nothing in the Voting Rights Act requires a deviation from the Alaska Constitution's compactness standard, "to keep the incumbent Alaska Native Legislator from the Benchmark Alaska Native District in the Proclamation Alaska Native District and avoid pairing him with a non-Alaska Native incumbent."

D. The Voting Rights Act Does Not Require the Creation of Proclamation District 34 as an "Influence District."

None of the four benchmark districts (37, 38, 39, and 40) that Dr. Handley identifies as "effective" minority districts, which consistently elected minority-preferred candidates, is located in Southeast Alaska.³² Neither is Benchmark District 6, which ³² Handley Report, 21 (ARB00013349).

Dr. Handley identifies as an "equal opportunity" district.³³ However, Dr. Handley also included in her report the following reference to Benchmark District 5:

In addition to these five house districts with substantial Alaska Native populations, there is a district in Southeast Alaska (House District 5) that is approximately one third Alaska Native and has elected an Alaska Native to legislative office throughout the decade—albeit not always the Alaska Native-preferred Alaska Native candidate.³⁴

The population of Benchmark District 5 is 38.18% Alaska Native, and the voting age population of Benchmark District 5 is 35.14% Alaska Native.³⁵ Dr. Handley presumably described Benchmark District 5 as an "influence district" rather than an "effective district" because it lacked the minimum 41.8% Alaska Native voting age population that she had determined would be sufficient for the election of an Alaska Native-preferred candidate.³⁷

However, contrary to the implication of the Board's publications, the creation of Proclamation House District 34 is not required for there to be an "influence district" in Southeast Alaska. House District 2 in the Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan contains 32.45% Alaska Native voting age population, 38 varying by only de minimis amount from the 32.85% Alaska Native voting age population in Proclamation Plan House District 34. Nothing in Dr. Handley's analysis, or in case law, indicates that the de minimis variation in percentage of Alaska Native voting age population between these two districts would detract from Modified RIGHTS Coalition Plan House

District 2 functioning as an "influence district" to the same degree as Proclamation Plan House District 34.

V. Conclusion.

The Petersburg Plaintiffs have demonstrated that Proclamation Plan House District 32 does not meet the compactness standard in Alaska Const. art. VI, §6. Nothing in the Voting Rights Act justified any deviation from that compactness standard in the districting of Southeast Alaska. Therefore, in creating Proclamation Plan House District 32, the Board committed an error in redistricting, and the Petersburg Plaintiffs are entitled to partial summary judgment to that effect. Under Alaska Const. art. VI, §11, the Proclamation Plan should be returned to the Board "for correction and development of a new plan" consistent with the Court's ruling on the Petersburg Plaintiffs' motion.

AFFIDAVIT OF LEONARD S. LAWSON

STATE OF ALASKA)) ss.
THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT

CASE NO. 4FA-11-2209CI

- I, LEONARD S. LAWSON, being first duly sworn upon oath, depose, and state as follows:
- 1. I was employed by the City of Petersburg to calculate the compactness of the RIGHTS redistricting plan as modified to include the same Southeast communities as the redistricting plan promulgated by the Redistricting Board ("Modified RIGHTS Plan") and the compactness of the promulgated redistricting plan ("Board Plan").
- 2. The Modified RIGHTS Plan consists of the last version of the RIGHTS Plan submitted to the Redistricting Board, but with Yakutat removed from the Southeast districts to mirror the same geographic area as Southeast Alaska in the Board Plan. As illustrated in Attachment 1 to this Affidavit, the removal of Yakutat from district 4 in the RIGHTS Plan does not materially affect the district's compliance with the one person—one vote requirement, or the percentage of Alaska Native voters in the district.

- 3. I have a Bachelor of Science degree in Mathematics with a concentration in Physics.
- 4. I used the software program "Maptitude" for Redistricting Version 6.0 to do my calculations. I was trained by Caliper Corporation, which is the company that developed this software, in a three-day training session held on location at Caliper Corporation.
- 5. Caliper Corporation is recognized in the field of redistricting, and its program is used by the United States Census Bureau. Its program is one of the most commonly used redistricting platforms in the country.
- 6. Using the above-identified software, I conducted a Reock Compactness Test ("Reock Test") on the districts in Southeast Alaska in both the Board Plan and the Modified RIGHTS Plan for Southeast Alaska.
- 7. The Modified RIGHTS Plan and the Board Plan have four southeast districts that comprise the same physical area. It is only in how each plan divides this area into the four districts that they differ. This makes it possible to substitute the Modified RIGHTS Plan for Southeast Alaska for the Alaska Redistricting Board's Southeast districts without changing any other districts in the Board Plan.
- 8. The Reock Test measures the ratio of the area of a district with the area of the smallest circle that contains that district. A perfect circle being considered the most compact shape, a measurement of 1.00 would be considered the most compact while a measurement of 0.00 would be considered the least compact. Using this test, it is possible to qualify how compact a district is in relation to other districts.

IN RE: 2011 REDISTRICTING CASES AFFIDAVIT OF LEONARD LAWSON F:\506254\8\00211774.DOCX

9. Southeast Alaska is composed of districts 31, 32, 33, and 34 in the Board Plan. Proclamation districts 31, 32, 33, and 34 have Reock Test scores of 0.43, 0.18, 0.56, and 0.20, respectively.

10. Southeast Alaska is composed of districts 1, 2, 3, and 4 in the Modified RIGHTS Plan. Modified RIGHTS Plan districts 1, 2, 3, and 4 have scores of 0.51, 0.26, 0.50, and 0.53, respectively. This shows that they are much more compact than the Proclamation districts to which they correspond. Three out of four of these districts, and thus the Southeast District as a group, are more compact under the Modified RIGHTS Plan.

- 11. Using the software identified above, I also determined the general population, the Native population, and the Native voting age population for the Southeast and the population of each of these groups in each Southeast Alaska district under both the Modified RIGHTS Plan and the Board Plan.
- 12. Attached to this Affidavit and incorporated herein are the general population, the Native population, and the Native voting age population in each of the southeast districts. See Attachment 1.
- 13. Attached to this Affidavit and incorporated herein is the Modified RIGHTS Plan for Southeast Alaska. See Attachment 2.
- 14. Attached to this Affidavit and incorporated herein is a graph showing the compactness numbers of each of the Southeast Alaska districts in both the Board Plan and the Modified RIGHTS Plan. See Attachment 3.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT FOR THE STATE OF ALASKATON BOX FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT AT FAIRBANKS

IN RE: 2011 REDISTRICTING CASES.

CASE NO. 4FA-11-2209CI

ORDER GRANTING MOTION BY PETERSBURG PLAINTIFFS FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE ISSUE OF COMPACTNESS

The Court, having reviewed the Motion for Partial Summary Judgment filed by the City of Petersburg, et al. ("Petersburg Plaintiffs"), and any opposition to that motion and reply thereto, being fully advised in the premises, and having found that there is no disputed issue of material fact and that the Petersburg Plaintiffs are entitled to judgment as a matter of law:

HEREBY ORDERS that the Petersburg Plaintiffs' motion is GRANTED. Proclamation House District 32 fails to meet the compactness standard of Alaska Const. art. VI, §6, and constitutes an error in redistricting under Alaska Const. art. VI, §11.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Proclamation Plan shall be returned to the Alaska Redistricting Board for correction and development of a new redistricting plan for Southeast Alaska that complies with the compactness requirement of Alaska Const. art. VI, §6.
