Officials from the Secretary of State's Office indicated:

Officials from the Secretary of State's Office indicated their office is required to pay for publishing in local newspapers the full text of each statewide ballot measure as directed by Article XII, Section 2(b) of the Missouri Constitution and Sections 116.230–116.290, RSMo. The office is provided with core funding to handle a certain amount of normal activity resulting from each year's legislative session.

Funding for this item is adjusted each year depending upon the election cycle, with $1.3 million historically appropriated in odd-numbered fiscal years and $100,000 appropriated in even-numbered fiscal years. Through FY 2013, the appropriation had historically been estimated because the final cost depends upon the number of ballot measures approved by the General Assembly and the initiative petitions certified for the ballot. In FY 2015, the General Assembly changed the appropriation so that it was no longer estimated.

The actual expenditures vary widely depending on the number and length of ballot measures. For example, in 2016, publishing six measures cost $2,341,601.11; in 2018, publishing eight measures cost $5,826,604.87; in 2020, three measures cost $1,276,613.66; in 2022, four measures cost $3,014,063.75; and in 2024, eight measures cost $2,472,362.53. Total expenditures since 2004 exceed $14.9 million for 60 ballot measures. Importantly, that $14.9 million has largely been spent since 2016, covering only 29 measures at an average cost of approximately $515,000 per measure.

Cost differences from year to year are driven not only by the number of measures but also by the length of ballot text. In 2018, for instance, costs were more than double those of 2024 despite both years having eight measures. The difference is explained by one unusually lengthy petition: a marijuana measure with approximately 50 pages of ballot text (letter size), which equated to roughly 40 legal-sized pages—far longer than a typical petition.

The office contracts placement of these notices through the Missouri Press Service, which ensures distribution across eligible newspapers statewide. In 2024, for example, 160 newspapers carried the full ballot language.

Because these publishing requirements are mandatory, the Secretary of State's Office must have full appropriation authority to meet the publishing obligations regardless of the number of measures in a given cycle. In addition to statutory ballot measures, the office must also accommodate referendum petitions, which increase the volume of ballot language requiring publication. With recent trends showing longer ballot language and multiple initiative or referendum petitions filed in the same cycle, costs are expected to rise substantially.

To reflect rising paper, printing, and distribution costs, increased advertising placement rates, longer ballot language, and the likelihood of referendum-driven measures, the Secretary of State's Office requests and budgets $10,000,000 to ensure sufficient funding is available to meet its constitutional obligations to publish ballot language.
