Expert Report of Brad Lockerbie, Ph.D.

2024-07-09

I. Purpose of Engagement

1. I have been asked to review the plaintiffs' report regarding the Town of Newburgh, New York.
2. In my review, I examined Matt A. Barreto's Ph.D. report.

II. Qualifications

3. I am a professor of political science at East Carolina University in Greenville, North Carolina. I have taught at East Carolina University since 2007. From 1988 to 2007, I was an assistant and associate professor of political science at the University of Georgia.
4. I have received sub-contracts on two National Science Foundation grants.
5. I have reviewed several statistics texts for Sage Press.
6. I have published over 30 peer-reviewed articles on elections and public opinion in political science journals and interdisciplinary journals, including the American Journal of Political Science, P.S.: Political Science and Politics, Social Science Quarterly, Public Choice. I authored Do Voters Look to the Future? Economics and Elections published by SUNY Press. I have published several book chapters, including two with Cambridge University Press. My CV is attached.
7. Most recently, I served as a consultant in the United States District Court of Western District Michigan Southern Division Agee et al. v. Benson et al., Case No. 1:22-cv-00272 redistricting case, Nielsen v. DeSantis (N.D. Fla.) regarding SB 90 and how it changes election law to return to pre-Covid rules and expand some access to voting. I served as a consultant in Donald J. Trump for President, Inc., et al., v. Kathy Boockvar et al. (W.D. Pa.), where the Trump campaign was arguing against the requirement of additional drop boxes and the canceling of signature matching assessment. I served as a consultant in North Carolina Alliance for Retired Persons v. North Carolina State Board of Elections (Wake Cty. Sup. Ct) where I reviewed proposed changes to ballot deadlines.
8. I am being paid $600/hour (including travel time) and expenses for my time in this case. My pay is not dependent on the content, the interpretation of the analysis performed, or the outcome of this proceeding.

III. Barreto Report

9. I have reviewed the report of Matt A. Barreto, Ph.D., dated June 28, 2024.

10. In addition to reviewing his report, I made use of data made available by Orange County.¹
11. I examined elections in the Town of Newburgh to determine whether minorities have a reasonable opportunity to elect candidates of their choice—that is, are minority-candidates usually defeated? Regardless of whether minority-preferred candidates are defeated, are the races competitive?
12. I have also examined the data to see if the Town of Newburgh is likely to vote for the candidate favored by minorities. I have employed the same assumption as Barreto, that the candidate favored by minorities is the Democratic candidate, as we know that African Americans typically vote for the Democratic candidate.
13. I have included those elections where one Democrat and one Republican contested the office.
14. I excluded contests where the voter was allowed to vote for more than one candidate because such contests are not one-on-one. Thus, it is difficult, if not impossible, to match up two candidates as opposing each other. For example, is the first-place candidate running against the top-losing candidate or the bottom-losing candidate? We cannot make that determination when voters are allowed to vote for multiple candidates for the same position.
15. Looking at the 2021 Newburgh Town Council Election, the two Republicans easily won.² In 2019, there were three candidates for these two positions.³ In 2013, there were two Democrats and two Republicans, and the two Republicans won.⁴ In 2011, the same results held.⁵ One should note in the 2011 election, Barreto included MacEntee, who did not have a major party nomination.⁶

16. Gary Jacobson argues that safe House seats are won with 60% or more of the vote.⁷ He uses this higher threshold as the swings from one election year to the next have increased.
17. Looking at the votes cast in the Town of Newburgh, in the below table,⁸ one can see that they are competitive. In over 70% of the cases, the winner received less than 60% of the vote.
18. If we use the more demanding 55% threshold, one can see that over 40% of the below races are competitive. See Carson and Roberts (2013) and Carson, Sievert, and Williamson (2020) for examples of academics using this definition.⁹
19. Looking at all the races below, minority-favored candidates have won 34% of the time. In even years, the minority-favored candidates win almost 50% of the time.
20. One should also note that in the most recent even-numbered years for which we have data, the elections are more competitive than in earlier years. In fact, the 2020 Town Council race was won by less than a percentage point.¹⁰ Lobiondo, the Republican candidate, received 50.43% of the two-party vote.¹¹ At the same time, Biden, the Democratic presidential candidate, received 53.89% of the two-party vote. Both of these elections were highly competitive.¹²

19. Barreto states that there is racially polarized voting in the Town of Newburgh. He makes use of the Bayesian Improved Surname Geocoding (BISG) technique to assess the racial makeup of those who voted in the Town of Newburgh.¹³ The BISG methodology relies on census information.¹⁴ Although Barreto and others have published articles on the BISG technique, we should note that it is by no means 100% accurate.

20. For example, Imai, Olivella, and Rosenman, propose using the fBISG methodology rather than the BISG methodology because of two errors: “First, the census often contains zero counts for minority groups in the locations where members of those groups reside. Second, many surnames—especially those of minorities—are missing from the census data.”¹⁵ Looking at Table 5 of their article, we can see that there is an overall error rate of 13.20%. For Whites, the false negative rate is 8.71% and the false positive rate is 23.00%. For Blacks, the false negative rate is 22.70% and the false positive rate is 8.06%. For Hispanics, the false negative rate is 24.06% and the false positive rate 2.15%. For Asians, the false negative rate is 41.44% and the false positive 0.46%. For other, the false negative rate is 95.33% and the false positive rate is 0.18%. If he used only surnames, the error rate is even higher, with an overall error rate of 16.70%.¹⁶ However, even the fBISG methodology may be inaccurate where the underlying race and ethnicity have been estimated with error.

¹³ See, e.g., Barreto, Matt A., Expert Report Submitted on Behalf of Plaintiff in Plaintiffs v. Town of Newburgh Barreto, ¶ 8 (June 28, 2024).

21. Overall, the error rate indicates a high level of accuracy, but one should note that the errors are not randomly distributed.

IV. Conclusion

22. Barreto argues that racial polarization has precluded the minority candidates of choice from being victorious. I did not see in his report where he assesses the likelihood of victory of these candidates. Looking at the election returns for the Town of Newburgh, one can see that the elections are competitive and minority preferred candidates often win.
23. We can also note that minority favored candidates, while not winning a majority of the races, have won 33% of the time. In even-numbered years, the win rate for minority favored candidates is even higher—just shy of 50%.
