Also Present:

Justin Klos, Director, House Democratic Office of Demographic Analysis
David Brogan, Esq., Director, House Democratic Legislation and Policy
Andrew McGinley, Esq., General Counsel, House Democratic Government Oversight Committee
CHAIR NORDENBERG: Good afternoon, everyone. Because the big clock on the wall is not working, I'm feeling disoriented, but I think it's after 1 o'clock and we should get started.

My name is Mark Nordenberg. As Chair of the Pennsylvania Legislative Reapportionment Commission, it is my privilege to call this meeting to order. It has been my habit to welcome those in attendance, either here in the Capitol or via our livestream, not only for myself but for the distinguished Members of the Commission. They are Senator Kim Ward, the Majority Leader of the Senate; Senator Jay Costa, the Democratic Leader of the Senate; Representative Kerry Benninghoff, the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives; and Representative Joanna McClinton, the Democratic Leader of the House. Today I also want to take this opportunity to thank all four of them, both for the work that they have done to get us to this point, and for the many courtesies that each of them has extended to me over the course of the last several months.

I also want to thank the talented and dedicated Members of the Caucus teams, people I have come to know and respect through the process of working with them, and that includes, I should say, working late into the evening and working on weekends. Of course, we never would have reached this point except for the work of the Commission's own team.
That group includes Rob Byer, our Chief Counsel; Renny Clark, our Executive Director; Jonathan Cervas, our Redistricting Consultant; Ann-Marie Sweeney, our Director of Administration, and Cheri Mizdail, our Administrative Assistant. We also have relied very heavily on the work of Brent McClintock, the Executive Director of the Legislative Data Processing Center, and Leah Mintz, who, like Rob Byer, is an attorney with the Duane Morris law firm. Without going into any greater detail, let me simply describe this group as both talented and essentially tireless.

We do have minutes from the meeting held on December 16, 2021, to approve today.

Are there any additions or corrections to those minutes?

(There was no response.)

CHAIR NORDENBERG: If not, can I have a motion for their approval?

SENATOR K. WARD: So moved.

SENATOR COSTA: Second.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: The motion has been made and seconded.

All in favor, please say "aye."

SENATOR K. WARD: Aye.

SENATOR COSTA: Aye.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Aye.
CHAIR NORDENBERG: We also have a series of resolutions to consider. These basically reflect the practicalities of a transition, hopefully soon, in the work of the Commission. Resolution 8A provides for the creation of an official report; Resolution 8B provides for the continuing service of members of the Commission staff; Resolution 8C permits technical corrections to be made to the plan; and Resolution 8D deals with the creation of the official record of the Commission.

Are there any matters to discuss relating to those four resolutions?

(There was no response.)

CHAIR NORDENBERG: If not, perhaps I can have a motion to approve them all.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: So moved, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Is there a second?

SENATOR COSTA: Second.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Any discussion?

(There was no response.)

CHAIR NORDENBERG: If not, all in favor, please say "aye."

SENATOR K. WARD: Aye.

SENATOR COSTA: Aye.
CHAIR NORDENBERG: Aye.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: Aye.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: Aye.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: The motion carries.

Though the other Commissioners had done some work before then, it might be said that the journey that the five of us have made together to this point began at our organizational meeting on May 26, 2021. Since that time, we have conducted 7 public meetings and hosted 16 public hearings. At those hearings, we heard from 36 invited witnesses, typically experts, and from 145 citizen witnesses, who offered both perspectives on the process and insights into the areas of the Commonwealth that they call home. We created a website portal to receive citizen comments, and we surely got them: 5,856 submissions to the portal. We also received 155 submissions that came to us either by mail or email, for a grand total of more than 6,000 submissions. All of them were read by at least two members of the Commission staff, and they were organized so that they were accessible to us as we moved forward with our work.

As I have indicated in past meetings, a Legislative Reapportionment Commission is convened every 10 years to redraw the Pennsylvania House and Senate districts in ways that reflect population changes, as revealed in the Census data, that comply with constitutional and statutory requirements, and that advance the democratic ideal of one person, one vote. The most significant changes revealed by the most recent Census were: Declining population in Pennsylvania's rural areas, substantial population growth in the Commonwealth's urban areas, particularly in the southeast, and a marked increase in the Commonwealth's non-white population.

On December 16, 2021, the Commission met to vote on its preliminary plan. Though we will vote on our proposed final plan as a whole today, consistent both with past practice and the language of the Constitution, in that session we took separate votes on the House and Senate maps. The House map passed by a 3 to 2 majority, and the preliminary Senate map was passed by a unanimous 5-0 vote. Today, I plan to provide an overview of the current state of both maps, including a comparison to the 2012 plan, which was found by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to meet constitutional standards.

In doing so, let me begin with an overarching statement. In drafting the preliminary and final reapportionment plans for the House of Representatives and Senate, our predominant purpose has been to comply in all respects with the requirements of the Pennsylvania Constitution, including particularly Article II, Section 16, which sets forth requirements for legislative districts;
Article I, Section 5, known as the free and equal elections clause; and Article I, Section 29, the racial and ethnic equality clause. Of course, we also were attentive to the requirements of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution and the Federal Voting Rights Act. In fact, we heard from a sizable array of efforts about the Voting Rights Act and its requirements, both before drafting the preliminary plan and afterward.

When circumstances permitted us to do so, and after insuring compliance with State and Federal law, we fashioned districts to create additional opportunities beyond the minimum requirements of the Voting Rights Act, positioning voters in racial and ethnic minority groups to influence the election of candidates of their choice. Going beyond those minimum requirements not only is consistent with the Voting Rights Act, but is consistent with, and perhaps required by, both the free and equal elections clause, and the racial and ethnic equality clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Where we were able to do so, we drew those minority influence districts without an incumbent, thereby providing the greatest potential for racial and ethnic minority voters to influence the election of candidates of their choice. Again, we did so while being mindful of the traditional redistricting criteria of Article II, Section 16, of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

My starting point in this presentation then is the same starting point that we have used in all of our work - the glanguage of Article II, Section 16, of the Pennsylvania Constitution, which provides: "The Commonwealth shall be divided into 50 senatorial and 203 representative districts, which shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as practicable.... Unless absolutely necessary no county, city, incorporated town, borough, township or ward shall be divided in forming either a senatorial or a representative district."

That seemingly straightforward language actually frames a daunting task. There are 2,560 municipalities in Pennsylvania, and when the assignment is to draw 253 House and Senate district lines through them, there are boundaries that will need to be cut. And even though school districts are not mentioned in the Constitution, they often are viewed as constituting communities of interest, entitling them to a level of deference as well. There are 500 school districts in Pennsylvania, which adds another dimension of complexity to the tasks.

The chart now on the screen displays the relevant comparisons between the plan being considered today and the plan that was approved by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in 2012. As you will see, both the House and Senate maps compare very favorably to that 2012 map. Looking first at the House map, both county and municipal splits are markedly lower, and our districts are more compact, though our overall and average population deviations are somewhat higher, something that often happens through the process of reducing splits. The Senate map, too, has a reduction in counties split, number of county splits, and number of municipality splits, with a slight increase in municipalities split. It also has a reduction in overall population deviation -- no, a reduction in average population deviation, and a slight increase in overall deviation.

Let me next comment on the House and Senate maps separately, to highlight some of the changes that have been made since the preliminary maps were approved on December 16. In doing so, I will begin with the House, to some considerable extent framing my comments around issues that have been raised by the House Majority Leader, who may have been the most vocal critic of that plan. In his remarks at the time the preliminary plan was approved, he stated that it had been his desire to support the Commission's plan, indicated that because of problems he saw in the House plan, he could not support it, but expressed the hope "that we can make changes before this thing is cemented permanently and finalized," and that we would take time to listen to the people.

From my earlier comments, you already know that we did a great deal of listening, attracting a historic number of citizen suggestions and recommendations through our website... portal and through our hearings. What may be less clear is the extent of the changes that have been made. However, we also have tried to be responsive, so let me update you on some of those changes.

The most compelling visual from the December 16 meeting when we approved the preliminary plan was the side-by-side presentation of the outline of Pennsylvania House District 84, which is now on the screen, and the salamander that has widely been associated with political gerrymandering.
As I already have publicly stated, District 84 is a Republican district completely surrounded by Republican districts, which means that the way it is drawn, as a matter of definition, is not a partisan gerrymander.

However, I also did agree that there almost certainly would be more aesthetically pleasing ways to draw District 84 and the districts adjacent to it. That now has been done, and in showing you the proposed final map of Districts 76, 83, and 84, let me acknowledge the assistance of Representative Hamm, the Republican House Member who represents District 84, and who shared his thoughts with us, particularly regarding the communities of interest in Union, Lycoming, and Sullivan Counties.

Probably the most vocal criticism of the preliminary map was directed at what was labeled the disproportionate pairing of Republican incumbents, which in that map involved 6 such pairings, or 12 Republican incumbents. In earlier meetings, I explained that the Majority Party naturally would experience a higher level of pairings. I showed that because so many Republican incumbents live very near district lines, how easy it would have been to target more of them if that had been our goal, and I offered two different points of comparison. The first was the redistricting plan that had recently been approved by the Supreme Court of Virginia and that pitted nearly half of the sitting legislative Members against each other, and the second was the preliminary maps that had been submitted by Fair Districts PA and by Amanda Holt, each of which pitted 36 incumbent Republicans against each other, compared to the 12 in our map.

Today, though, I want to talk about what has happened since then, and to do so I want to return first to the preliminary House map and look in particular to the western part of the State. Let me first call your attention to the southwest corner of the State, where you will see the pairing of a Democratic incumbent and a Republican incumbent in Greene and Washington Counties, and also will see the pairing of two Republican incumbents in Westmoreland County. Creating such pairings was a necessary step to deal with population losses in that region, which, after all, is the principal purpose of reapportionment. However, let me be clear in saying to you that the particular pairings did not originate in the Commission but came from the Caucuses, who designated their Members who would be involved in potential contests.

The preliminary map also paired two Republican incumbents in northern Washington County, and that was done by the Commission team and me, as a part of our effort to avoid splitting the border between Allegheny and Washington Counties. However, a bipartisan group of four Representatives
- Representatives Gaydos, Ortitay, Kinkead and Kulik - made persuasive, professional presentations, supported by submissions from local officials, about the damage that might be done unless we retreated from that decision. To be clear, this was not a generic plea. It was, instead, a plea that focused on distinctive regional needs, including coordinated responses to flooding, economic development initiatives that involved people on both sides of the county border, and the needs of the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport. I will say that for me, their presentation was actually one of the high points of this process. We found it to be persuasive, so we redesigned our plan for that region, permitting the split of the county border, and in the process, unpairing the two Republican incumbents, and also eliminating some existing municipal splits.

Moving north, to the area of Butler, Lawrence, and Mercer Counties, I first need to show you, and you can see it on the screen, what a mapping mess this region is in the map that was enacted in 2012. Butler County is an area that has experienced strong growth and is perfectly sized for three full House districts. However, under the 2012 plan, Butler County was divided into seven House districts, with only two of those Representatives living in the county. Similarly, Mercer and Lawrence Counties together are perfectly sized for three full House districts. However, under the 2012 plan, those counties were divided into five districts, including a district that stretches from Lawrence County through Mercer, Crawford, and Erie Counties, all the way to Lake Erie.

In our preliminary plan, we treated Butler County alone, and treated Lawrence and Mercer Counties together as a two-county unit, and made maps accordingly. Following the release of the preliminary plan though, we began receiving suggestions about the communities of interest that cross county lines in that tri-county region. We also received continuing pleas from the Republican Caucus Leaders to unpair their incumbents, if that was possible. We shifted our focus, we began looking at that region as a three-county region, and ultimately produced a new map eliminating another pair of Republican incumbents.

What I hope this conveys in some sense that this was a thoughtful process, not an exercise in targeting incumbents of either party. And to summarize where we stand today in terms of the pairing of Republican incumbents, I should say, first, there are some pairings that were suggested to us because one of the incumbents was known to be retiring. If we put those to the side, the Republican incumbents who are paired amount to only three pairs; a number that, given the size of the House of Representatives, and given the size of the cuts that we have seen in other proposals and in other jurisdictions, certainly does not seem out of line.

Beyond being responsive to incumbent pairings, we also were attentive to expressed community needs. Perhaps this can be most easily understood if I make reference to the hearings held by the Republican Caucus in the town of McCandless and in Mechanicsburg as a way of highlighting their opposition to the splits in the plan that impacted those communities. Those communities, quite predictably, generated citizen comment directed to those issues. Among them was a request for information from a North Allegheny High School student who was writing an article for her school newspaper and wanted to know about the split of McCandless and the split of the North Allegheny School District. She did not realize when she reached out to me that when I was her age, I was living in McCandless and was a student at North Allegheny myself. In any event, we were able to eliminate the cut in McCandless, as we had been requested to do. We were able to reunite the Pine-Richland School District. Unfortunately, and despite the fact that it is my alma mater, we were not able to completely put the North Allegheny District back together again. But we did eliminate the split in McCandless, we did eliminate the split in Mechanicsburg, and we eliminated other splits that were the subject of suggestions that came from the Republican side. Moon, Murrysville, and Horsham are among them.

But what everyone needs to understand about this process is that when a cut is eliminated in one municipality, it most often is simply transferred to another, because again, if you've got 2,560 municipalities, and you need to draw the lines that create the borders for 203 House seats and 50
Senate seats, inevitably things will need to be split.

The effort of the House Republican Caucus to discredit the Commission's preliminary plan rested heavily on the report and testimony of the only witness they presented during a hearing that was devoted to expert witnesses. The two main themes of his testimony were the use of statistical simulations in an attempt to establish that our plan was an unfair partisan gerrymander, and the offering of general and unsupported conclusions about the dilution of the voting influence of minority groups.

A half-century ago, I was a math major, but I claim no expertise when it comes to statistical simulations.
A quarter of a century ago, I was teaching courses in civil procedure, evidence, and trial advocacy, all of which had to do, among other things, with the qualifications and testimony of experts, but that is dated knowledge, too. So I won't claim expertise in that area either. However, I have decades of distinctive expertise that is directly relevant to this particular dimension of the Commission's work. That is, for much of my career, one of my most important responsibilities was to review the academic work of faculty members at all levels and across all disciplines in a major research university for the purpose of making decisions ranging from initial appointment, to promotion, to tenure, to elevation to distinguished faculty ranks.

When I reviewed the resume of the young faculty member called as an expert by the House Republican Caucus, there were positive features of his record, including the fact he had written articles in areas that are of interest to me. However, the thing that really caught my attention was that he had not, as an academic expert, written a single academic paper in either of the areas for which he was called as a witness. Contrast that to the truly amazing record of Professor Kosuke Imai, who was the House Democrats' first witness and is regarded by many to be the world's leading quantitative political scientist. He was on the Princeton faculty for 15 years, where he was the founder of its program in Statistics and Machine Learning. He now is a member of the Harvard faculty, where he is the first professor ever to hold appointments both in its Department of Government and its Department of Statistics. Not only does he have an outstanding publication record in the field relating to the areas about which he testified, but he actually developed the algorithm that was used by the Republicans' expert witness.

Professor Imai found three things when he analyzed the study that was conducted by that witness. First, he could not replicate the results, which always is a source of questions. Second, when he used the algorithm himself, the algorithm that he had developed, he found that our plan was less a statistical outlier than the Republican expert had suggested. And third, that became even more true when he factored in racial data. In fact, he concluded that when majority-minority districts are considered, there is no empirical evidence that the preliminary plan is a partisan gerrymander.

Also called by the House Democrats was Professor Christopher Warshaw, a faculty member from George Washington University's Department of Political Science, and who also held an academic appointment at MIT earlier in his career. Professor Warshaw is a native of Pennsylvania whose expert opinion was cited by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in the 2018 League of Women Voters case. He has published papers directly related to his testimony, and also is a member of the advisory board of PlanScore. His three conclusions about the preliminary plan all were very positive. This is what he said:

"The plan is likely to be responsive to shifts in voters' preferences."

"On this plan, the party that wins the majority of the votes is likely to usually win the majority of the seats."

"Based on three methods of projecting future elections and four different, generally accepted partisan bias metrics, I find that the plan is fair, with just a small pro-Republican bias."

John Nagle, a Professor Emeritus from Carnegie Mellon University, had appeared as a citizen witness in our earlier hearings and returned in that role in January. Dr. Nagle was a Professor of Physics and Biological Sciences at Carnegie Mellon, where he made extensive use of simulations. Interestingly, though this was not originally his field, he now has published four directly relevant academic peer-reviewed papers in Election Law, a top ranked peer-reviewed political science journal. He also has invented two of the partisan bias metrics used by Dave's Redistricting App. In addition to his more scientific observations, Dr. Nagle offered a down-to-earth but thought-provoking perspective on the methods employed by the House Republicans' witness. To quote: "The fallacy of averaging the ensemble of simulations can be revealed by an analogy. A professional basketball coach could consider 1,000 people who know how to play the game and then randomly choose an average one to play center. That is like choosing a plan from many simulated plans in the middle of the ensemble of simulated plans. Or the coach could hire Lebron James. That is like picking the LRC proposed plan."

At the very beginning of his report, the House Republicans' witness declared that his "simulation process ignores all... racial considerations when drawing districts." That is a puzzling choice, since under similar circumstances, the Commission is required to take account of racial considerations, and in a broader set of circumstances is permitted to do so. Presumably, that is why Professor Imai included such data in his simulations. Neither the fact that his simulations included no racial data nor the fact that this is another area in which he has no academic publications to his credit kept the House Republicans' witness from basing much of his analysis on the sweeping theme that if minority group voters are spread across multiple legislative districts, their influence is inevitably diluted. Of course, all of us know that voter influence can be diluted either by cracking or by packing. Knowing where the correct balance can be struck requires an intensive local appraisal, which the Republicans' witness did not perform.

To conduct such an analysis, the House Democrats retained Dr. Matt Barreto, one of the country's leading scholars of Latino politics and the Voting Rights Act. Professor Barreto is a faculty member with appointments in both Political Science and Chicana/o Studies at UCLA, where he also is the Faculty Director of the UCLA Voting Rights Project. In analyzing the 2012 House map that currently is in place, Dr. Barreto said this:

"Multiple Black-performing and Latino-performing districts are packed and exhibit wasted Minority votes, which results in vote dilution;" and

In analyzing this Commission's preliminary plan, Dr. Barreto concluded, "Minority-performing districts in the preliminary plan will perform for Minority voters." That, of course, was very important to us, because as I said when the Commission approved the preliminary plan, "This plan includes seven minority opportunity districts, true VRA districts, minority influence districts, and coalition districts in which there is no incumbent, creating special opportunities for the
The Commission’s efforts to create these districts also were hailed by those who probably have the best informed insights, the three Latino Members currently serving in the House of Representatives, and the leadership of the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus, which has served since 1973 as "an information and advocacy vehicle to advance the interests of African American, Latino, and other people of color of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." This is some of what Representatives Burgos, Cruz, and Guzman said in their letter to the Commission:

"Since the approval of the preliminary map for Pennsylvania's state House of Representatives on December 16, 2021, there has been a significant amount of discussion about how this map impacts communities of color across the Commonwealth. As Latino members of the House we feel compelled to address these important concerns."

"We applaud the work that you have done to ensure these communities, which have been underrepresented in the legislature for too long, are fairly represented...."

"The LRC's Preliminary Plan is responsive to [the] growth of the Latino population in many important ways. Statewide, this plan creates nine districts in which Latino communities should be able to elect their candidates of choice. Three of those districts will be open seats with no incumbent member, meaning a Latino candidate of choice would not need to overcome the power of incumbency in order to be elected....

"...Latino representation is lacking in Pennsylvania.... The Preliminary Plan for House Districts makes major strides in correcting this injustice and restoring fairness in representation in Pennsylvania. As Latino members of the House, we embrace the goal of the LRC and applaud their work. We look forward to serving in a diverse legislature."

Representative Donna Bullock, the Chair of the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus, sent a letter that though addressed to me really was intended for the entire Commission. Let me quote briefly from it:

"I have watched the reapportionment process closely. I am truly impressed by the process...and the commitment to fairness and transparency that you have demonstrated in the creation of the preliminary map. I am pleased to fully endorse this preliminary plan [as] responsive to the growth of communities of color across the Commonwealth.

"As many have noted, statewide the number of Pennsylvanians who identify as Black, Hispanic, Asian, or multiracial increased by more than 800,000 since the last census...."

"In addition to preserving and expanding districts in which a racial minority group makes up the majority of the population, the preliminary plan takes the important step of including coalition districts.

"These districts, in which diverse communities of color make up a majority or plurality of the population, recognize the commonalities of Black, Latino, Asian and Indigenous Pennsylvanians and will allow these communities to fully realize their political power....

"I want to thank you...for your tireless efforts in the redistricting-cycle and for recognizing that the diversity of this Commonwealth is a strength. Your efforts have led to a plan that will uplift-rather than dilute-our voices."

Similar efforts were undertaken in our work on the Senate map. Because Senate maps are much larger though, that process is far more challenging. Our preliminary Senate map included the foundation for what was an inspiring example advanced by Majority Leader Ward, moving a district into the Lehigh Valley to create a Hispanic-influence district there. To maximize the Hispanic population in that district would have required reaching beyond Lehigh County into Northampton County to draw in with Allentown, Bethlehem, and other communities. Taking that step drew questions and criticisms from the involved communities, from elected officials, and from some good governance groups, so we did not take that full step.
However, our new Senate District 14 does already represent opportunities for influence. Its Hispanic voting age population is 26.37, and its Black voting age population is 6.37. From population growth trends statewide and in that region, those numbers will only continue to grow. And consistent with our efforts in the House, it also is a district with no incumbent.

The most dramatic change in the Senate map since our approval of the preliminary plan is the creation of a new Hispanic-influence district in Philadelphia. District 2 has a Hispanic voting age population of 36.75, and a Black voting age population of 24.1 percent.

Because the Super Bowl is almost upon us, I thought it might be appropriate to close with a quote from Vince Lombardi, the late legendary Hall of Fame coach and the person after whom the Super Bowl trophy is named. Coach Lombardi said this: "Perfection is not attainable, but if we chase perfection, we can catch excellence."

As I said before, there is no such thing as a perfect map. There also is no such thing as a perfect process. What I can say, though, is that no one involved in this effort has been motivated solely by a desire to get the job done. Instead, we have wanted to do the job well, and I believe that we have succeeded. By virtually any measure, even if imperfect, these are good maps that are fair, that are responsive to the requirements of the law, and that will serve the interests of the people of Pennsylvania for the next decade.

I'd like to open the floor for comments from other Members of the Commission, beginning with Senator Ward.

SENATOR K. WARD: No, thank you. I'm good.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Senator Costa.

SENATOR COSTA: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Thank you very much.

Mr. Chairman, as you know, as indicated, this has been a long and important process, and one that I've had the honor and privilege to be a part of twice now, a Member of this Commission, but also one indirectly as a Member of the Senate. I think it is one of the most important things that I have done in my tenure with the Pennsylvania Senate because it reaches every single resident of our Commonwealth. Every 10 years, this Commission comes together and is charged with deciding how our citizens will best be represented by our General Assembly and requires us to build districts that gives them a voice in every single action that we take as a legislature.

If the district in which you live is not adequately representative of you or your community, it limits your ability to have your collective views and voices reflected in the votes of the Members elected to represent you. And those votes will impact your lives every day. Your State elected leaders determine how much funding your school district will receive, what infrastructure projects can be funded, the rules for casting your ballots, the laws that control professional licenses, as well as important environmental policy for our Commonwealth. These issues matter to every voter, and if a gerrymandered district prevents you from representation that reflects your views, we have a problem.

It is with that in mind that we take on this process with fairness and engagement with the public as some of our top goals. This year, we also endeavored to be, and I believe we have succeeded, in being one of the most, if not the most, open and transparent Legislative Reapportionment Commissions in our history. It's been pretty clear that over the past several years, the citizens of Pennsylvania have lost faith in our reapportionment and our congressional redistricting process. They have sent a very clear and very strong message that they want the redistricting process to be conducted through a fair, open, thoughtful, and inclusive manner. And I'm happy to tell you that we've heard that. We have held, as indicated by the Chairman, the most public hearings ever. We've received over, as was indicated, nearly 6,000 comments and suggestions through the Commission's online portal. We have received valuable testimony from the largest number of experts and members of the public, in fact some more than once. We held our meetings in a hybrid format that allowed for participation in all of our meetings in Harrisburg, but also virtually from anywhere in Pennsylvania. We did not want geography or concerns about COVID-19 to limit our public's participation.

Now, as indicated by the Chairman, there are many considerations that go into this process beyond simply population and district lines. This year we had to deal with the added challenge of delays receiving that population data, Census population data, due to COVID-19 challenges in the 2020 Census process. We tried to create districts that are compact and contiguous and do not separate communities of interest.

This Commission has been charged with developing House and Senate maps by abiding to various laws and principles, and some of our goals have been to, as was indicated partly, faithfully adhering to the requirements of the Voting Rights Act, so that we can draw and maintain majority-minority districts, or even do things along the lines of working to create coalition districts, when possible. Our goals have been to accommodate the significant migration of population from the northern sections of the State into the southeastern portions. And more importantly, we have had to address the long practice of prison gerrymandering. Under the leadership of Leader Joanna McClinton, prison residents now will be counted in the home community in which they would be residing and not in the prison location.

And finally, we have addressed growing communities of Latino populations and ensure that they -- make certain that there are seats where their voices can be heard so that the growing demographic, as mentioned, is fairly represented in Harrisburg. And finally, we have to adhere and address the issues from the Pennsylvania Supreme Court enunciated in the League of Women Voters decision requiring and relative to the free and fair election cause that essentially says that political balance is critical to a functioning democracy.

Mr. Chairman, at the end of the day, the Senate map was the result of three-party negotiations between the Democratic and Republican Caucuses as well as the Commission and their staff that acted as an independent agent in developing this map. I will be casting my affirmative vote for both the House and the Senate plan today. Our Chairman has assembled a highly qualified team, including his own mapper, who worked to develop alternatives to presentations of the Caucuses. This is a product that is reflective of population changes and shifts, reflective of our legal requirements, and most importantly, reflective of the public's feedback and participation. At the outset, we set lofty goals for ourselves, and in this process, as I believe it to be, we have achieved many of them.
I want to thank my fellow Commission Members, this Commission as a whole, our Chairman Nordenberg, the staff involved in the process, and also every person who testified before us, who submitted maps, or even gave us their feedback. This is a map that belongs to the people for the next decade, and this time, and this year, I feel that they truly are and this is truly a product by the public and for the public.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you, Senator Costa.

Leader Benninghoff.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: Mr. Chair, I spoke to you earlier, I'd like to make a motion to offer an amendment to this House map, plan, at this point, please.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: What I would suggest is why don't we complete our opening remarks, and then I'll turn to you for your amendment.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: I will defer until that time. Thank you.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader McClinton.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Good afternoon, and thank you, Chairman Nordenberg. Initially, as we take this important step today, I want to extend my sincere thanks to you and to the team that you have assembled for your dedicated work throughout this redistricting cycle. I know how hard you have worked, how many hours you have put in, and how your dedicated public service resulted in a better process and product for the people in this Commonwealth. Mr. Chairman, Judge Byer, Dr. Cervas, Renny, and Ann-Marie, thank you for your commitment and service.

From our first meeting until today, Mr. Chairman, you have demonstrated a commitment to fairness and transparency. This commitment has remained steadfast even in the face of bad faith partisan and politically motivated attacks unbefitting of you and the process you have led. You have risen above the noise and remained focused on your commitment to deliver a fair, constitutionally sound map.

During the last several months, the Commission has heard valuable feedback from citizens and stakeholders across the Commonwealth. We have solicited and considered analysis from a cross-section of highly qualified academics and experts in this field. As some of my Commissioners have noted previously, getting to this point has been far from easy.

Mr. Chairman, you have challenged all of us to consider every single option, to hear every voice. This Commission, under the steady and scholarly hand of Chairman Nordenberg, has truly set a new standard for redistricting here in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The time and attention that we dedicated to this process informed the preliminary plan that we adopted in December, and the input that we have received since its adoption has only further refined and improved the House map which we are voting on today.

The House map that we vote on today is fair, it's representative, and it satisfies all the constitutional requirements. I am proud to vote in favor of the final plan, and I look forward to the implementation of this new fair and representative House map in the upcoming 2022 primary and the elections that's coming throughout the next decade.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you, Leader McClinton.

I'd like to ask first if there is a motion to approve the proposed final plan, which then will lay the foundation for Leader Benninghoff's motion to amend.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: So moved, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you.

Is there a second?

SENATOR COSTA: Second, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you.

Leader Benninghoff.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: Thank you, Mr.

Chairman.

I make a motion to offer an amendment that we will call the Benninghoff Amendment dated February 4, 2022, to the House portion of the plan offered by the LRC Commission. This amendment will be to the final overall plan. This was sent out to the Members of the Commission earlier, but we have hard copies here for you as well.

SENATOR K. WARD: I second his motion.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: So there is a motion to amend that has been made by Leader Benninghoff, and that has been seconded by Leader Ward.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: If I can comment on that, when appropriate.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Please, proceed.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

As a five-board Commission, obviously we have different opinions here, but I want to share a few comments regarding this amendment specifically. In my remarks at the Commission hearing on January 15, I indicated my sincere desire to work cooperatively to remedy the multiple constitutional infirmities contained within the LRC's preliminary map, of which we heard today some corrections were made, so I'm actually glad I made the vote I did. My goal at that time was eventually to be able to get to 5-0 vote in favor of the final plan. With the new changes, unfortunately, that simply does not happen.

I believe the preliminary map needed some changes, the final map makes a few adjustments, but there are many things that we could do additionally to better represent what we need for our Commonwealth. But more specifically, it concerns me that this has not been put out to the public for public observation prior to this point, as we eloquently talk about how open and transparent the process has been. I would note that the congressional maps that were drafted and were done by the State Government Committee actually were set aside for public comment for almost a month.

While I may offer this amendment, it is my last chance to cure some of the defects that I still see in the Commission's work. Today, I offer an opportunity for a House plan that would not, in my opinion, be assessed as an extremely partisan outlier. This plan is clearly better on both constitutional and moral metrics, which I'll share in a moment. A plan that will better withstand the slew of challenges that will follow this Commission's votes today. As for those that don't know, today is not the end - it goes out to a legal challenge time period.

The metrics of this amendment, in the end, this all comes back, to me, to the Constitution giving the people the chance to pick their politician rather than the other way around. My amendment does just that. It ensures that we comply with our constitutional obligations, respects the growth of the minority groups in the Commonwealth, and corrects numerous problems in the proposed final plan.

As it was stated earlier and needs repeated, Article II, Section 16, of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides that legislative districts shall be as nearly equal in population as practicable. In my amendment, the overall population deviation is 7.99 percent. This is comparable to the deviation in the House plan developed in 2012 and approved by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which had a deviation of 7.88 percent. And more importantly, it is significantly better than the House map in the Chair’s proposed final plan that we are to vote on shortly, which has a deviation of a whopping 8.65 percent, which not only tests the outer limits of acceptable deviation, but exceeds them in some margins.

The Constitution also mandates that “Unless absolutely necessary no county, city, incorporated town, borough, township or ward shall be divided....” Here, my amendment will significantly improve the metrics of the House plan in the proposed final map. Currently, split counties - my amendment has 46, the House map plan has 45. Total county splits - 186 in both my amendment and the House plan. Split municipalities - my amendment only has 42, the House plan has 56. And total municipalities split - we have 76, and the House map has 92. Split wards - 88 in ours, 87 in the House map. And total wards split - 97, and the House map is 98. Finally, the districts in my amendment are compact and contiguous, meeting all the constitutional metrics under Article II, Section 16, and improving upon many over the proposed final plan we are to look at.

On numerous occasions, I have raised concerns about the impact of the preliminary plan on minority groups. In particular, the Latinos. I have said those concerns include the requirements of the Voting Rights Act, that of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution, and Article I, Section 29, of the Pennsylvania Constitution. My amendment addresses those problems by not drawing voters into districts on the basis of their race or drawing districts to racially target. Rather, my amendment focuses on compliance with redistricting principles in Article II, Section 16. It removes unnecessary splits in places like Allentown, Reading, Lancaster, and here in Harrisburg. By focusing on traditional redistricting principles and not by artificially dividing voters up because of their race for partisan gain, my amendment still provides substantial opportunities for Pennsylvania's minority population under the same metrics promoted by the Commission.

Specifically, we have 5 majority-minority Hispanic districts, which is 1 more than the final plan; 4 Hispanic-opportunity districts, double the number of the final plan; 8 majority-minority Black districts, 1 more than the final plan; and 12 Black-opportunity districts, the same as the final plan. Overall, there are at least 26 districts with a combined minority voting age population of 50 percent or more, 1 more than the final plan. We did this by following the Constitution, not subordinating constitutional principles for partisan gain, and not by racially gerrymandering the State. Compliance with the Voting Rights Act and the 14th Amendment, in other words, does not require the kind of egregious Democratic gerrymandering I feel the preliminary plan represented.

Turning to partisan fairness, according to the expert analysis recently presented to the Commission by Dr. Michael Barber, based on 50,000 of his simulated plans, drawing without partisan data and applying only constitutional parameters, the most common outcome of any of the plans showed 97 Democratic districts. Our amendment, which was subsequently also scored by Dr. Barber using 2012-2020 statewide elections, scores exactly at 97 Democratic districts.

In conclusion, if you believe in population equality, you will vote for my amendment. If you believe in keeping municipalities whole, you will vote for this amendment. If you believe that partisan gerrymandering is wrong, you will vote for this amendment. And finally, if you truly believe in providing equal opportunity for Pennsylvania's growing Hispanic and Black populations to participate in our democratic process and to actually elect Members to the House, you must vote in favor of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the time and that of the Commission. Thank you.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you, Leader Benninghoff.

The Leader has made a motion for an amendment. Are there any other Members of the Commission who wish to speak?

Leader McClinton.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I just want to briefly address Leader Benninghoff's claim that the House map negatively impacts people of color, especially Hispanic voters. Last night, with my own mother, who was born in segregated North Carolina, I was looking at a Black history special talking about how the children, grandchildren, and I'm a few greats, but not too far removed from enslaved Africans in this country who had no right to vote whatsoever. No opportunity to the franchise. So to suggest that I, whose grandmother could not vote when she was 18 until the Voting Rights Act passed in 1965, come as the first Black to this table and I'm trying to disenfranchise people of color, whether they're African American, Latino, or any other color, to me, to my Caucus, it is very personally disrespectful. I hope that my counterpart is just misinformed and is, in fact, not trying to mislead people over something that is so serious about fairness and equality. These are important issues that I personally take offense to.

The simple truth is that the House map fairly reflects the significant demographic changes since the last Census. It provides equal opportunity for all Members and for the entire electorate to participate in the electoral process. In addition, the map includes nine districts with no incumbent in communities with very large minority populations which will provide opportunities for minority candidates to run for office. This Commission has heard expert testimony on voting rights issues from Dr. Matthew Barreto in support of the preliminary map. The Commission also received testimony from Latino lawmakers in the House and from other Latino Pennsylvanians in support of the preliminary map. I am very proud to support the product that we have worked on collectively this afternoon.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you.

Is there any other discussion?

(There was no response.)

CHAIR NORDENBERG: If not, I will call for a vote on the motion to amend. And because this does involve the House, let me begin with you, Leader Benninghoff.
REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: I apologize, are you calling for the vote now?

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Yes.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: I am a "yes."

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader McClinton.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: No.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader Costa.

SENATOR COSTA: No.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader Ward.

SENATOR K. WARD: Yes.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: And I vote "no" as well.

So the motion to amend fails.

There remains on the table the motion to approve the final plan, as was presented to the Commission earlier. Is there further discussion?

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: Deferring my time earlier when the other Members gave their opening comments, I would like to add comments to the final plan before it actually goes for a vote, when you see that's convenient.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: That's fine.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: I do thank you, Mr. Chairman, and those other Members of this Commission.

As I tell a lot of people, difference of opinion hopefully makes a better final product. I will be a "no" vote on this final plan for several reasons, but two specifically.
First, it is my belief that it blatantly fails to follow the constitutional criteria in Article II, Section 16, it does not -- and probably does so for partisan gain. Secondly, I am still appalled at the use of race in drawing this plan as an excuse for partisan gain.

Let me start with the issue of race. On its face, the map routinely sorts voters into districts on the basis of race in order to rig districts to protect Democrat incumbents. I cannot think of any worse use of the Commission's powers put forward than to advance a plan that is drawing voters into districts because of their race, and without any evidence before this Commission that this kind of slicing/dicing is required to give minority voters an equal opportunity to elect representatives of their choice. To the contrary, it appears to me the proposed plan would significantly hurt the likelihood of minority representation in the General Assembly, especially since last year the decennial Census data showed the largest population growth over the past 10 years was the Latino community.

I have thought long and hard about much of the testimony that came before us on this, and I was thinking an awful lot about this program and the process overall. Probably nothing legislatively I've lost more sleep over, or tried to give more attention to. Some of you may know that I've been in the General Assembly a little bit and have heard a lot about our lack of diversity, particularly from Members of the Minority Caucus. Time and time again we hear it thrown out that the Pennsylvania House is not representative of Pennsylvania, that it is 90-percent white and 75-percent male. In fact, many minority communities, particularly Hispanics in Allentown, Reading, Lancaster, and Black voters in Harrisburg, will be cracked, and if anything, denied their realistic chance of electing more Members to the General Assembly that have their shared experience and can represent their communities from places of familiarity and not just mirror legislative response.

We have heard a lot of public testimony and received a lot of comments on this issue from across the Commonwealth. In not addressing these very serious issues, the Commission is ignoring the voices of people like Victor Martinez, Enid Santiago, Latino Justice, Common Cause, the NAACP of Harrisburg, and many others. I think this quote from Mr. Martinez on the preliminary House map in a recent news story tells what his feelings are. He says, and I quote, "You might have made it more inclusive, but as far as my testimony, as far as the people I represent and the people I testified for, didn't do us any good. They didn't make it any easier."

It may surprise people to learn that while a lot has been said about how this map will increase Hispanic representation and influence, nothing about this map actually does so. Let me give you a couple examples. As just one example, on the House final map plan to stick with four current majority-minority Hispanic House districts, it actually reduces the Hispanic voting age population in three of them.

In the current House map known as the 127th Legislative District, it has a Hispanic voting age population of 31,822. In the final plan of that same district, Hispanic voting age population is 23,915. Removing 7,907 Hispanic voters from that district does not help Hispanic voters elect their preferred candidate.

Let’s look at the current district of House 22 Legislative District. Has a Hispanic voting age population of 27,208. According to the Department of State’s results from the 2020 primary election, then Representative Schweyer defeated Enid Santiago in that primary, as she testified before us, by 55 votes. In the final plan, the 22nd District has a Hispanic voting age population of 24,500. In what world does reducing the Hispanic voting age population by 2,708 people and putting those voters into another district help those Hispanic voters have an opportunity to elect a candidate of their choice, as we are told? In addition, the current incumbent was then moved out of the 22nd District and put into the 134th District. Hmmm. Given these numbers, what would motivate all these changes? It’s pretty simple: it’s about protecting that Democrat incumbent, not about increasing opportunity for minorities to elect candidates of their choice.

But it isn't just in these districts. Let me continue. In the current House map 132nd Legislative District, it has a Hispanic voting age population 19,991. The final plan has a Hispanic voting age population of only 7,737.
Like the other examples, it's a reduction of 12,254 Hispanic voters, and doesn't help Hispanics have an impact, much less getting the preferred candidates elected. Why would you make these changes, you might ask that question, because I have many times. Simply to protect the Democrat white incumbent.

In the current House map, House District 126 has a Hispanic voting age population of 19,844. In the final plan, the 126th District has a Hispanic voting age population of now only 16,131. Once again, Hispanics carved out of a district.
Why? Protecting the Democrat incumbent.

In the current House map, the 96th Legislative District has a Hispanic voting age population of 17,065. In the final plan in that same 96th District, it has a Hispanic voting age population of 6,527. Again, reducing the Hispanic voting age population by a whopping 10,538. Simply serves one issue: protecting the white Democratic incumbent and making it very difficult for the Hispanic or Latino population to elect one of their own, should they choose to.
Now I want to touch on how this map cracks the Black vote in Harrisburg for partisan gain. Look at the 103rd District. As it currently exists, it was created using traditional constitutional neutral redistricting criteria in the past, and it contains a Black voting age population just under 40 percent. But under the LRC final plan, the city of Harrisburg is split between the 103rd and the 104th Legislative Districts. The voting age population of Black Americans in the city of Harrisburg is split now between these two districts. The 103rd has a voting age population of Blacks at 10,346, and the 104th has a voting age population of Black Americans of 14,238.

The Constitution demands that the city of Harrisburg be kept whole unless absolutely necessary to split. For the last 40 years, Harrisburg has been kept whole. The existing 103rd Legislative District represents the entire city and is the majority of that population. But the proposed plan by the LRC divides Harrisburg's population so that Harrisburg will not be the majority of the population in either the 103rd or 104th. Is this an improvement? Your guess is as good as mine. The 103rd will have 27,559 citizen residents. The remaining population is across the Susquehanna River on the West Shore in Cumberland County. The 104th will have 23,120 citizens of that district in Harrisburg, and the remaining population snakes away from the city towards the borough of Hummelstown.

At a recent Commission hearing, all the experts defending the preliminary plan talked about how these changes - splitting the Black vote in Harrisburg and reducing the Hispanic voting age population in a large number of districts - complied with the Federal Voting Rights Act and the Second Amendment [sic]. Admittedly, I'm not sure how that's possible, especially in light of the written testimony of renowned VRA expert Dr. Jonathan Katz that was provided to this Commission, and the compelling testimony by Dr. Michael Barber. As far as Dr. Barreto's failure to show legally significantly racially polarized voting in this State, I am aware of no data in the record to justify the Commission's overt and flagrant use of race to draw these districts.

And as I said at the hearing, none of these experts defending the plan even mentioned Article I, Section 29, of the Pennsylvania Constitution that, yes, you and I, the people, voted on. In May of last year, the people of Pennsylvania approved a constitutional amendment, Article I, Section 29, which says specifically "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania because of race or ethnicity of the individual."

Our own Pennsylvania Attorney General, in his plain English statement describing the amendment said this:

"...inclusion of this amendment within the Pennsylvania Constitution signifies that freedom from discrimination based on race or ethnicity is an essential principle of liberty and free government.

"This equal right to be free from racial or ethnic discrimination will exist independent from any such rights in the United States Constitution or corresponding federal law."

I believe this new constitutional language was ignored in the drafting of this plan, even though it was heavily voted for by the people. Even more importantly, I am convinced that the splits of Harrisburg, Allentown, Lancaster, and Reading creates specific problems under Federal law. In Article I, Section 29, of the Pennsylvania Constitution, these splits and reductions in Hispanic voting age population that I just explained are simply to protect the Democrat white incumbents and cannot be justified by a claimed need to be compliant with the Voting Rights Act.

As you know, the guiding principles I have tried to take into consideration since we began our work was developing maps that met the requirements of both the State and Federal Constitution. Unfortunately, it's my belief the map falls woefully short of the goal on several fronts. First, it falls short on the issue of population equality. Article II, Section 16, of the Pennsylvania Constitution requires that districts in the House and Senate must be as nearly equal in population as practical. Unfortunately, the plan before us does not meet that standard. And here's why.

The population deviation in the final LRC plan is 8.65 percent. The deviation in the proposed final plan with House District 106 containing 66,872 constituents, House District 119 with 61,334. Clearly unconstitutional. It's over 5,500 difference. The amendment this Commission just considered and voted down shows it is possible to draw a map with a constitutionally sound population deviation. As I just said, it had a population deviation of only 7.99 percent.

Now, let me touch on one of the most egregious parts of this map, and that is the splits of municipalities. Again, go back to Article II, Section 16, of the State Constitution. It's pretty simple. It says, "Unless absolutely necessary no county, city, incorporated town, borough, township or ward shall be divided in forming a house or senate district." Excessive splits of political subdivisions caused by the LRC Commission plan 10 years ago was found to be ruled unconstitutional and remanded to the Commission their map to be a redo. Pretty obvious what their opinion was. The Supreme Court, in Holt v. New Jersey, recognized the importance of county seats in particular when it said, "...we trust that the LRC, in formulating its new plan, and necessarily reducing the political subdivision splits and fractures, will be attentive to the concerns of historically unified subdivisions, such as as County seats." Then more recently in the League of Women Voters, the Supreme Court again pointed out to the splitting of cities like Harrisburg and Reading for partisan purposes run afoul of the Constitution.

Just a few minutes ago, the Commission voted against my amendment to the House, which would have had fewer municipal splits than the final map that we are about to vote on. The final plan splits 56 municipalities - 14 more. But it's not just how many political subdivisions were split. The court also looks at how many times they were split. Just a few minutes ago, this Commission voted against my amendment to the House map, which had a fewer number of total splits of municipalities than the plan shortly to come before us. So similarly unconstitutional population deviations, my amendment demonstrates that based on the numbers, the Commission's final plan fails to sufficiently maintain the integrity of municipalities, and is a direct violation of Article II, Section 16.

The problem with the splits are not just limited to numbers. The problems arise because these splits are located in areas for the purpose of partisan, and what I would consider racial, gerrymandering. I've already dealt with the racial gerrymandering component, but as to partisan gerrymandering, I think the case presents itself very well. It is well-established by The Philadelphia Inquirer, in an analysis done by the Princeton Gerrymandering Project, of which I will note Dr. Cervas, who drew this map, is a member, that Pennsylvania's natural political geography lends itself to giving Democrats around 93 seats when neutral constitutional redistricting principles are applied. According to every analysis out there, this final LRC plan provides more seats to the Democrats, some 103 to 107, depending on which analysis you read, than Pennsylvania's natural political geography. We're trying to get water to flow uphill.

One of the justifications for these numbers and why the map does what it does is that it gives proportional number of seats to the party that has won the popular vote in certain elections over a certain number of years. Unfortunately, those offering this amendment of proportionality need to realize it is nowhere to be found in our redistricting law. In fact, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in the Holt case tells us that "The constitutional reapportionment scheme does not impose a requirement of balancing the representation of the political parties; it does not protect the 'integrity' of any party's political expectations. Rather, the construct speaks of the 'integrity' of political subdivisions, which bespeaks history and geography, not party affiliation or expectations." In other words, the Commission cannot unnecessarily split a county or municipality to artificially increase the number of Democrat-leaning districts, even if the alleged goal of doing so is to achieve a more proportional seat share relative to the statewide two-party vote share or to negate natural geographic disadvantages.

The Supreme Court has held that the neutral redistricting criteria of the Pennsylvania Constitution cannot be subordinated in other factors like partisan gain. As I said when we considered the preliminary map, the map before us is nothing short of a danger to our system of government, upends established norms and emphasis on local control and local voices that Pennsylvanians hold dearly. We've seen that many times in the last year.

As I predicted last month, people have tried to justify this map as undoing some wrong or correcting previous partisan gerrymanders. Again, those using that logic fail to realize that by drawing a map that is meant for no other reason than to cement a legislative majority for a certain party for the coming decade, they do not undo those wrongs they seek to correct; they repeat them. They perpetuate them. As we have seen in the last several weeks, maybe they even revel in them. I don't know.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I appreciate your patience. I would be remiss if I didn't comment a little bit on the process this Commission has gone under for the last several months. It has been a little bit disappointing to begin with, the way in which there was justification for the prisoner reallocation. Not only did this pursuit ultimately cost the Commission more than a month or more of map-drawing time, but it was the first indication that the fix was in. It makes no sense to me, the only quartered population to be addressed, and only a subset of that. The chase for phantom constituents would have a negative impact on rural Republican-leaning districts to the advantage of more urban Democrat-leaning districts. It was a process that played itself out repeatedly during this redistricting cycle, even up to recently following the 3-2 approval of the preliminary map.

I had hoped that the majority of the over 14 hours of hearings by this Commission would have been used to hear the exceptions from aggrieved parties. That didn't necessarily occur. Instead, I was dismayed to hear that public aggrieved parties were denied the opportunity in some cases to testify at our hearings while Commission staff handpicked friends and allies to use our time to defend the preliminary map. We know of dozens of aggrieved parties who wanted to come and testify before us to lodge exceptions that were not allowed to register. I myself would have sat through 10 more hearings to let that happen. The fact that even one of them was turned away while defenders of the map were given an opportunity to speak defies the constitutional requirement.
for that time period in Article II of the Constitution of the public comment period.

As to the comments sent to this Commission, I'm extremely frustrated that so many were ignored. Yes, many were read, but I'll say, and I'll repeat, there was no process outlined by this Commission as to how the entire Commission would review these comments and collectively come to some decision of how to properly use them and reflect them in the map.

Quick example. We know there are over 600 comments about the Bucks County changes. That's more than 10 percent of the overall comments submitted from one county. Yet, there are no significant changes between the preliminary map and the final map before us today regarding Bucks County. If you get a chance, I'd encourage you to read the Bucks County Courier Times and their article in relevance to that. We also know that there were hundreds of comments about the Juniata Valley made to this Commission. Yet, this map shows no changes to the Juniata Valley, who has now lost a Representative seat. The transparency that may have been upheld during the beginning of this process, unfortunately, does not overcome some of the decisions made in the back room by a handful of individuals.

I am frustrated that more of the public comments were not reflected. Ultimately, this final plan continues the problems found in the preliminary plan. It does not provide for equality of population. Somehow, "one person, one vote" got lost in the other priorities of the drafters of this plan. It has too many splits that fail the constitutional requirement of absolute necessity, and splits in Harrisburg, Lancaster, Allentown, Reading only serve to further the goals of unconstitutional partisanship and racial gerrymandering.

The Commission's final plan is being sold as fixing problems of the past, but it doesn't. In my opinion, it creates new. This map does not create more competitive districts. In fact, it packs Republicans and Democrats in uncompetitive districts. It might change competitiveness on the floor of the House, but it doesn't create fair districts. This map's competitiveness is so bad that it will only lead to increased polarization, less bipartisanship, and more gridlock, something our Commonwealth does not need, and nor does our country.

Mr. Chair, you said you wanted to benefit minorities, but despite the record growth of Hispanic populations and concentrations in areas like Lancaster, Allentown, and Reading, the final plan splits up Latino voters into districts that are so-called opportunity districts, but there's no evidence these districts are necessary or even give an opportunity to elect their preferred candidates, possibly just diluting them. On top of that, it creates a false hope for minority voters, since these districts are likely to fail on constitutional grounds. Understand that if you vote for this plan, you are engaged in partisan gerrymandering. You know what you're doing to the Latinos, you know it's wrong.

And in closing, I have been advocating for drawing maps along strict neutral constitutional redistricting criteria. While some on the Commission believe their path to the majority only lie in hijacking the work of this body, I believe we are called to much higher standards. Unfortunately, the impact of the poor, politically motivated decisions some Commissioners will make today will outlast the temporary Commission that sits before you, to the detriment of Pennsylvania's communities for the next decade. Given the violence that this plan does to constitutional standards, given the unconstitutional divides of the voters into districts based on race, which have not been shown will do anything to benefit the minority voters and votes, and given the blatant partisan gerrymandering of this map, I don't see how any of us can vote for this map, and I most certainly will not.

I appreciate your time and your attention to this conversation.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you, Leader Benninghoff. Are there other comments from Commissioners?

Senator Ward.
SENATOR K. WARD: Thank you. Thank you, everyone.

I just want to start by saying thank you to all of our Commission Members and to everyone who participated in this long, arduous process. So in the preliminary map, we had a 5-0 vote for the Senate, which was closely aligned with the Pennsylvania and United States Constitutions, as well as the Federal Voting Rights Act. I had expressed a need for some small tweaks to the preliminary map prior to its passage, such as reducing splits of political subdivisions and increasing the opportunity for the growing Latino community in the Lehigh Valley. Well, we tried to do that, it didn't work out, but we did end up having a Latino community, a pretty strong one, in Philly.

It was a surprise to me that after the preliminary map a great emphasis was placed on competitive districts. So when we started this process, we were to follow -- try to keep county splits down and keep our districts compact. So when that started, it really got the map really moving in all kinds of directions, and it's really hard not to do some gerrymandering when you're trying to get a competitive district, when you're trying to put more Republicans in one place and more Democrats in one place. But nevertheless, we did follow that route and we did get a few districts, three districts, that are slightly more competitive than they were in the preliminary map.
This is an imperfect process and it's an imperfect final plan, but I am confident that at least the Senate portion of this meets all the constitutional requirements and will be able to uphold and stand up against the legal challenges. And while I do wish that the House amendment was included in this, and I do wish the vote was bifurcated, as it was in the preliminary map and I voted against the House in the preliminary map, because I would vote against that part of it again today, it's not bifurcated today, and my primary duty and obligation is to the Senate. And for that reason today, I will vote in the affirmative.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you, Leader Ward.

Are there other comments?

Leader McClinton.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I just want to make sure that I'm clear on behalf of my Caucus that I really, really hope that Leader Benninghoff's professed commitment to people of color in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania becomes reflective in his public policy going forward throughout the next decade and is even reflective of his Caucus.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: I would like to make some comments for the record. First, I want to say that while we were worried that dealing with the issue of prison... gerrymandering might cut into the time for focusing on maps, in fact its impact was very small. That was the product of the fact that the Census data was delayed. Much of the work that we did on that issue was done before we had the data that would permit us to focus on the maps, and I think the time of delay that could be attributed to the Commission's consideration of that issue was no more than three or four days.

Second, we have tried to manage the fairest possible process in terms of reaching out to receive public input. We've had more hearings than any past Commission. We had long hearings, we had hearings that provided the witnesses with a meaningful amount of time to speak, and also provided Commissioners with the opportunity to engage with those witnesses.

There was a reference made to the testimony or the report of Dr. Katz. He had been identified as a witness who was to be called by the House Republican Caucus on the day of our expert witness hearing. We were then told that he would not be a witness. At the time of the hearing, a report was delivered from him, but he was never presented, as the other experts were, for questioning and exchanges with Members of the Commission. Though I did rule that his report could be a part of the record, and it is there, also a part of the record is the response from Professor Barreto to the report of

Legislative Reapportionment Commission
Professor Katz.

There was a reference made to Dr. Cervas as the drafter of this map. He was not the principal drafter of either the House map or the Senate map. This is the first time that the Commission has had someone with the technical skills to permit it to keep up with the Caucus teams. Dr. Cervas actually is a Ph.D. in political science with technical skills. He is not a professional mapper, as would be the case with some of the members of the Caucus staff. And again, he was not the principal drafter of either of the maps.

Other comments from Commissioners?

(There was no response.)

CHAIR NORDENBERG: If not, let me call for a vote on the motion that is before the Commission now, and that is a motion to adopt the final plan that is being presented today.

Leader McClinton.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLINTON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

So moved -- yes.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader Ward.

SENATOR K. WARD: Yes.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader Costa.

SENATOR COSTA: Yes.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Leader Benninghoff.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: No.
CHAIR NORDENBERG: And I, too, cast a "yes" vote for the plan, which means that it has been adopted by the Commission.

Are there any further comments that Members of the Commission would care to make, or any other business to come before the Commission today?

Leader Benninghoff.

REPRESENTATIVE BENNINGHOFF: I just want to say thank you to everybody. Mr. Chairman, as you and I have talked in sidebars, and as I tell a lot of my colleagues, we're in an industry that needs to agree to disagree, and the difference of opinions doesn't necessarily make one right and one wrong, and we'll see where the process goes from here, and I thank you for that time and indulgence. And I thank the rest of the Members as well.

CHAIR NORDENBERG: Thank you very much.

And with that, this meeting of the Commission is adjourned. Thank you all.

(Whereupon, the proceedings were concluded at 2:48 p.m.)
I hereby certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken by me during the hearing of the within cause, and that this is a true and correct transcript of the same.

Chair Mark Nordenberg called the meeting to order at 1:00 p.m.

He recognized the other members of the Commission in attendance:
- House Majority Leader Kerry Benninghoff
- Senate Democratic Leader Jay Costa
- House Democratic Leader Joanna McClinton
- Senate Majority Leader Kim Ward

Chair Nordenberg welcomed citizens who are in attendance and those who were participating via the livestream telecast. He expressed his sincere appreciation to the other four members of the Commission for their continued diligence in conducting the work of the Commission. He noted that over the past seven months of working with each Commission member, he found that each of them has been fully attentive to the responsibilities place upon them, because of their respective leadership positions, by the provisions of the State Constitution.

Chair Nordenberg then called for action on the first item on the agenda, approval of meeting minutes for meetings held on August 24, 2021, September 21, 2021, and October 25, 2021. Hearing no discussion, Chair Nordenberg called for a motion for approval of the three sets of meeting minutes:
- Motion by Commissioner Costa to approve all three sets of minutes
- Second by Commissioner McClinton

Chair Nordenberg then called for a vote on the motion:
- Commissioner Benninghoff – Aye
- Commissioner Costa – Aye
- Commissioner McClinton – Aye
- Commissioner Ward – Aye
- Chair Nordenberg – Aye

Chair Nordenberg announced that the motion passed unanimously.

Chair Nordenberg then presented a brief review on the purpose of the Legislative Reapportionment Commission noting that it was created under Article II of the State Constitution over 50 years ago. He pointed out that the Commission replaced the role of the legislature in performing the required reapportionment of the Commonwealth’s House and Senate districts. Under the current structure, the four caucus leaders are positioned to contribute distinctive perspectives on the Commonwealth as well as the legislative processes within each caucus. Thus, he noted that the work of the Commission will still be influenced by partisan objectives than would be true of a totally independent commission like those that have been created by other states.

Chair Nordenberg then stated that what is under consideration at this meeting is a preliminary plan with maps showing the proposed districts for the 203 House seats and the 50 Senate seats. If approved, the plan is then filed with the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth by the end of the day. This action will then trigger a 30-day period within which any person aggrieved by the plan can file exceptions, which the Commission will consider. He stated the Commission will continue to hold public hearings in order to receive additional input. Then the Commission will meet again to consider possible changes to either map before filing a final reapportionment plan to the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Once that is done, persons still aggrieved can file an appeal on the final plan with the State Supreme Court.

Chair Nordenberg again reminded the Commission members that due to the delay in receiving the Census data, the Commission was forced to operate under a very strict timeline. While the Constitution provides for a 90-day period in which to prepare the preliminary plan, he noted that this Commission accomplished that task in just over 60 days. He thanked the Commission members and their respective teams for their efforts and also thanked the members of the Commission’s staff. He cited the staff as a very strong team.

Chair Nordenberg reminded everyone that the reapportionment process is guided by the State and Federal Constitutions in order to provide a good result for the people of Pennsylvania and assure the principle of one person, one vote.

Chair Nordenberg pointed out that the preliminary plan, based on independent assessments, has both maps favoring the Republican party. This is due in part to political geography, especially since so many of the state’s Democratic voters live in the Southeast corner of the state which is hemmed in by the borders of New Jersey and Delaware. He stressed that the Commission staff is neither partisan nor anti-incumbent but also that when population changes require new maps, those maps invariably will affect incumbents.

Chair Nordenberg commented that many people have told him that it is easy to draw redistricting maps. However, when getting more information, he found that the overwhelming majority of maps submitted to contests held by good governance groups were for the state’s 17-district congressional map, a smaller number of submissions for the 50-district Senate map, and very few for the 203-district House map. He firmly stated that he has found from experience that nothing is easy about drawing these maps.

Chair Nordenberg noted the Commission has held nine hearings, that included 29 presentations by experts and 51 presentations by interested citizens. There have also been 724 submissions to the website, and the submission of 19 Senate maps and 10 House maps from individuals. There have also been submissions from such groups as Draw the Lines, Fair Districts PA, and Pennsylvania Voices.

Chair Nordenberg stated the proposed House map compares favorably to the current map except for overall deviation, which is much higher. The higher deviation is due to the reduction of splits in county and municipality borders, as well as special attention to racial equity. However, the average absolute deviation is only two percent, reflecting that district-to-district deviations have been kept at a markedly lower level. He pointed out that the preliminary House map includes seven minority opportunity districts, true Voting Rights Act districts, minority influence districts, and coalition districts where there is no incumbent, thus creating special opportunities for the possible election of minority representatives.

Chair Nordenberg then turned to the preliminary Senate map noting that it fares well when compared to the current map on almost every measure except for overall deviation and absolute deviation. So, this map will need further attention. The map does include a minority influence district in Lehigh County that has no incumbent.
Chair Nordenberg closed his remarks by encouraging those who are interested to review the plan and submit suggestions for improvement. While the Commission may not accept every idea that is submitted, he stressed that every idea will be considered. Suggestions can be submitted on the website or in writing to the Commission office. However, all submissions must be received no later than January 18, 2022.

Commissioner Ward asked to make comments. She thanked the Chair for his leadership, citing the accomplishment of getting to this point before the 90-day window had expired. However, she cited that the Senate map still needs corrections to be made and urged that the Commission continue to stay focused on the task in order to get the final plan approved in time to meet the calendar requirements of the spring election. She noted that if counties are forced to delay the spring elections, it would create significant increased costs to each of them. She said it has been an honor to serve on the Commission.

Commissioner Costa then made comments. He cited the significant amount of public comment that this Commission has received compared to the 2011 Commission, on which he also served. He stressed that the next 30 days would be critical in hearing what the public has to say about the maps in the preliminary plan. He noted that there will still be opportunities to make adjustments and improve the maps even further. He also thanked the Chair for his leadership.

Commissioner Benninghoff then spoke. He noted that the Commission is making decisions that will impact the citizens of Pennsylvania for the next ten years and thus he has been actively participating in and watching the work of the Commission. He then firmly stated that he sees the House map as extremely partisan gerrymandering. He specifically cited the proposed 84th House district as a gerrymandered, reptilian-looking district. He also raised his concerns that communities of interest are not being seriously considered in the drawing of the House map. He feels the process has become a mechanical and emotionless exercise in lines and numbers and not considering the needs of the people of Pennsylvania. He stated that the State Supreme Court would reject this current proposed House map. He referred to the map as a danger to our system of government as it upends the established norms and emphasis on local control.
and local voices that Pennsylvanians hold dear. He cited the splitting of major cities as blatantly unconstitutional noting that the Constitution demands that municipalities be split only when absolutely necessary. He also noted that the proposed map has 12 Republican incumbents running against each other while only two Democrat incumbents will face each other. And there are four other districts where incumbent Republicans are pitted against incumbent Democrats. He urged that changes be made. He also requested that an analysis done by Dr. Michael Barber of Brigham Young University be admitted to the record and Chair Nordenberg agreed to the request. Commissioner Benninghoff concluded his remarks by stating that he would not vote in favor of the House map.

Commission McClinton then spoke. She commented that she has truly appreciated the opportunity to serve on the Commission and thanked the Chair for his work. She feels the Commission has produced a fair preliminary plan. She noted how the demographics of the Commonwealth have changed over the past ten years with dramatic shifts in the census numbers that reflect a solid growth of people living in urban and suburban areas while there has been a significant drop in the population of the rural areas of the state. She pointed out that there has been a substantial increase in the minority population of Pennsylvania—people who are Black, Hispanic, Asian, or multiracial increased by more than 800,000 while the White population decreased by more than 540,000. The racial composition of Pennsylvania is now more than 10 percent.

She stated that she will vote in favor of the preliminary plan for the following reasons:

1. The House map fairly accounts for the dramatic changes in the population of the Commonwealth since the last census. This will result in three new House districts in Philadelphia, Lancaster and Montgomery Counties. The plan also comports with the Voting Rights Act and eliminates the representation inequities that result when incarcerated persons are counted where they are in prison rather than at their home locations.

2. The preliminary House map is representative of the Commonwealth as it is today and allows for equal participation in the electoral process. The map consists of 203 compact and contiguous Representative districts that are nearly equal in population and satisfies the free and equal mandate in the Pennsylvania Constitution.

3. The preliminary plan is the product of an inclusive process, robust debate, and expert collaboration.

Chair Nordenberg thanked all four Commissioners for their comments. He then stated that a request had been made to separate the vote on the preliminary plan and to instead vote separately on the proposed Senate map and the proposed House map. Commissioner Benninghoff stated that he wanted to be able to support the map that he believes in and by bifurcating the vote, he can support the Senate map.

Chair Nordenberg then asked for a motion to hold separate votes on the two maps:

- Motion by Commissioner Benninghoff to bifurcate the votes on the maps
- Second by Commissioner Ward

Chair Nordenberg then call for a vote on the motion:

- Commissioner Benninghoff – Aye
- Commissioner Costa – Aye
- Commissioner McClinton – Aye
- Commissioner Ward – Aye
- Chair Nordenberg – Aye

Chair Nordenberg announced that the motion passed unanimously.

Chair Nordenberg then asked for a motion to accept the Senate map in the preliminary plan:

- Motion by Commissioner Costa to accept the preliminary Senate map
- Second by Commissioner Ward

Chair Nordenberg then called for a vote on the motion:

- Commissioner Benninghoff – Aye
- Commissioner Costa – Aye
- Commissioner McClinton – Aye
- Commissioner Ward – Aye
- Chair Nordenberg – Aye
Chair Nordenberg announced that the motion passed unanimously.

Chair Nordenberg then asked for a motion to accept the House map in the preliminary plan:
- Motion by Commissioner McClinton to accept the preliminary House map
- Second by Commissioner Costa

Chair Nordenberg then called for a vote on the motion:
- Commissioner Benninghoff – No
- Commissioner Costa – Aye
- Commissioner McClinton – Aye
- Commissioner Ward – No
- Chair Nordenberg – Aye

Chair Nordenberg announced the motion passed on a 3-2 vote.

Chair Nordenberg announced that the Commission would continue to hold public hearings in early January.

With no further business, Chair Nordenberg adjourned the meeting at 2:10 p.m.
It is hereby resolved that the Executive Director of the Commission, working with the Chair and staff of the Commission, shall prepare an Official Report of the 2021 reapportionment process, which will serve as a resource for future Commissions. Printing costs related to the Official Report shall be an expense of the Commission, and the Report shall be made public under the terms established by the Pennsylvania Right-to-Know Law.
2021 LEGISLATIVE REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

Resolution 8 B-2-4-22

It is hereby resolved that G. Reynolds Clark shall continue to serve as Executive Director of the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission throughout the pendency of any litigation, including proceedings on remand, arising out of a Final Reapportionment Plan filed by the Commission, and through the completion of the final report authorized under Resolution 8 A-2-4-22, unless the Chair directs that his services be terminated at an earlier date.

The Executive Director shall be authorized to perform ministerial and administrative duties, which shall include the preparation, working with the Chair, of an Official Report of the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission in accordance with Resolution 8 A-2-4-22. Any extraordinary action shall require either a majority vote of the Commission, cast in a public meeting, or the unanimous written consent of the Commission. The Executive Director shall continue to receive the regular salary heretofore paid him for service to the Commission through February 28, 2022. Thereafter, the Executive Director shall be paid for his services at the per diem rate of $660 until his duties as Executive Director shall be completed.

It is hereby resolved that Mark A. Nordenberg, as Chair of the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission, is authorized to supervise the work of the Chief Counsel to the Commission on any litigation regarding the Final Plan adopted by the Commission, and shall function for all purposes as the client representative in connection with any litigation. The Chair also will work with the Executive Director to prepare an Official Report of the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission in accordance with Resolution 8 A-2-4-22. In fulfilling these duties, the Chair shall consult, as appropriate, with the other members of the Commission. The Chair, who has not sought any compensation for his services to date, shall be entitled, if he so requests once the scope and extent of the litigation is known, to per diem compensation for these future services in an amount to be determined by members of the Commission, which amount shall be publicly disclosed.

It is further resolved that Robert L. Byer shall continue to serve as Chief Counsel to the Commission and shall remain in that position under the terms set forth in the engagement letter dated May 27, 2021 between Duane Morris LLP and the Chair of the Commission until such time as the Chair, or the Commission, terminates his service with the Commission.

It is further resolved that Dr. Jonathan R. Cervas shall continue to serve as redistricting consultant to the Commission and shall remain in that position through the conclusion of any litigation, including proceedings on remand from any court, pursuant to the terms of the Service Purchase Contract, dated August 4, 2021, and any renewals executed by the Chair or Executive Director.

It is further resolved that Ann-Marie P. Sweeney shall continue to serve as Director of Administration to the Commission and shall remain in that position under the same terms established by this Commission in Resolution 2 B-6-25-21, until such time as the Chair or Executive Director terminates her service with the Commission.
It is further resolved that Cheri M. Mizdail shall continue to serve as Administrative Assistant to the Commission and shall remain in that position under the same terms established by this Commission in Resolution 2 A-6-25-21, until such time as the Chair or Executive Director terminates her service with the Commission.
It is hereby resolved that, upon unanimous written approval of the Commission, changes may be made to the Final Reapportionment Plan to remedy technical defects discovered during the course of review. Such technical corrections shall be made and incorporated in the plan at the direction of the Commission until such time as review is complete, and until the final plan is published in newspapers through the Commonwealth pursuant to Article II, Section 17 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Thereafter, no changes shall be made in the Plan except at the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.
2021 LEGISLATIVE REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

Resolution 8 D-1-XX-22

[OFFICIAL RECORD]

It is hereby resolved that all official documents, maps and other records of the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission shall be deposited in the Archives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania upon conclusion of any and all litigation. A duplicate set of select records, as well as unofficial documents, shall be stored with the Chief Clerk of the Pennsylvania Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives for ready access by future Commissions.
Good afternoon. My name is Mark Nordenberg. As Chair of the Pennsylvania Legislative Reapportionment Commission, it is my privilege to call this meeting to order. It has been my habit to welcome those in attendance, either here in the Capitol or through our livestream, not only for myself but for the distinguished legislative leaders who serve as members of the Commission. They are: Senator Kim Ward, the Senate Majority Leader; Senator Jay Costa, the Democratic Leader of the Senate; Representative Kerry Benninghoff, the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives; and Representative Joanna McClinton, the Democratic Leader of the House. Today, I also want to take this opportunity to thank them, both for all that they have contributed to this effort and for the many courtesies that they each have extended to me.

I also want to thank the talented and dedicated members of their caucus teams, people I have come to know and respect and with whom I have enjoyed working. Of course, we never would have reached this point in the process except for the work of the Commission’s own team, which includes: Rob Byer, our Chief Counsel; Jonathan Cervas, our Redistricting Consultant; Renny Clark, our Executive Director; Ann-Marie Sweeney, our Director of Administration; and Cheri Mizdail, our Administrative Assistant. Also indispensable to so much of what we have accomplished are Brent McClintock, the Executive Director of the Legislative Data Processing Center and Leah Mintz – who, like Rob Byer, is an attorney with the Duane Morris law firm. Without going into more detail, let me simply describe this team as both talented and tireless.

Though the other Commission members had done some work before then, it might be said that the journey that the five of us have made together began at our Organizational Meeting on May 26, 2021. Since that time, we have conducted seven public meetings and hosted sixteen public hearings. At those hearings, we heard from thirty-six invited witnesses, typically experts, and from 145 citizen-witnesses, who offered both perspectives on this process and information about their home communities. We created a website portal to receive citizen comments, which attracted 5,856 submissions. We also received 155 submissions that came to us through mail or email, for a grand total of more than 6,000 submissions. All of them were read by at least two members of the Commission team, and they were organized to make them accessible to us as we moved forward with our work.

As I have indicated in past meetings, a Legislative Reapportionment Commission is convened every ten years to redraw Pennsylvania House and Senate districts in ways that reflect population changes as revealed in census data, that comply with constitutional and statutory requirements and that advance the democratic ideal of one person / one vote. The most significant changes revealed by the most recent census were: declining population in Pennsylvania’s rural areas; substantial population growth in the Commonwealth’s urban areas, particularly in the Southeast; and a marked increase in our state’s non-white population.

On December 16, 2021, the Commission met to vote on its preliminary plan. Though we will vote on our proposed final plan as a whole today, consistent both with past practice and with the language of the state Constitution, in that session we took separate votes on the preliminary House map, which passed by a 3 – 2 majority, and the preliminary Senate map, which was approved on a 5 – 0 vote. Today, I plan to provide an overview of the current state of both maps, including a comparison to the 2012 plan, which was found by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to meet constitutional standards.

In doing so, let me begin with an overarching statement. In drafting the preliminary and final reapportionment plans for the House of Representatives and Senate, our predominant purpose has been to create districts that comply in all respects with the requirements of the Pennsylvania Constitution, most notably, Article II, Section 16 (which sets forth requirements for legislative districts); Article I, Section 5 (also known as the “Free and Equal Elections” clause); and Article I, Section 29 (the racial and ethnic equality clause). Of course, we also were attentive to the requirements of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution and the Federal Voting Rights Act. In fact, we heard from a sizable array of experts about the Voting Rights Act, both before and after we approved the preliminary plan.

When circumstances permitted us to do so, and after ensuring compliance with state and federal law, we fashioned districts to create additional opportunities beyond the minimum requirements of the Voting Rights Act, positioning voters in racial and ethnic minority groups to influence the election of candidates of their choice. Going beyond those minimum requirements not only is consistent with the Voting Rights Act but is consistent with, and possibly required by, both the Free and Equal Elections clause and the Racial and Ethnic Equality Clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

Where we were able to do so, we drew those minority opportunity and influence districts without an incumbent, thereby providing the greatest potential for racial and ethnic minority voters to influence the election of candidates of their choice. Again, we did so while being mindful of the traditional redistricting criteria of Article II, Section 16 and other constitutional mandates.

Measuring the Maps

My starting point in this presentation, then, is the same starting point that we used in all of our work, the language of Article II, Section 16 of the Pennsylvania Constitution, which provides:
The Commonwealth shall be divided into 50 senatorial and 203 representative districts, which shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as practicable. . . . Unless absolutely necessary no county, city, incorporated town, borough, township or ward shall be divided in forming either a senatorial or a representative district.

That seemingly simple, straightforward language actually frames a daunting task. There are 2,560 municipalities in Pennsylvania, and when the assignment is to draw 253 House and Senate district lines through them, there are boundaries that will need to be cut. And even though school districts are not listed in the Constitution, they often function as communities of interest that also may be entitled to a level of deference. Since there are 500 school districts within the Commonwealth, that further complicates the process.
The chart now on the screen displays the relevant comparisons between the plan being considered today and the plan that was approved by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in 2012. As you will see, both our House and Senate maps compare very favorably to that 2021 map.

Looking first at the House map, both county and municipal splits are markedly lower, and our districts are more compact, though our overall and average deviations are somewhat higher, something that very often happens when splits are reduced. The Senate map, too, has a reduction in counties split, number of county splits and number of municipality splits, with a slight increase in municipalities split. It also has a reduction in average deviation and a slight increase in overall deviation.

The House of Representatives Map
Let me next comment on our House and Senate maps separately to highlight some of the changes that have been made since the preliminary maps were approved on December 16. In doing so, I will begin with the House, to some considerable extent, framing my comments around issues that have been raised by the House Majority Leader, who may have been the most vocal critic of it. In his remarks at the time the preliminary plan was approved, he stated that it had been his desire to support the Commission’s plan; indicated that, because of the problems he saw in the House plan, he could not support it; but expressed the hope that “we can make changes before this thing is cemented permanently and finalized” and that we would take the time to listen to the people.

From my earlier comments, you already know that we did a great deal of listening, attracting an historic number of citizen suggestions, through our website portal and through our hearings. What may be less clear is the extent of the changes that have been made. However, we also have tried to be responsive, so let me update you on some of those changes.

The Well-Fed Salamander.
The most compelling visual from the meeting to approve the preliminary plan was the side-by-side presentation of the outline of Pennsylvania House District 84 and the salamander that has become a widely recognized symbol of gerrymandering. As I already have stated publicly, District 84 is a Republican district that is completely surrounded by other Republican districts. The way that it is drawn, then, cannot possibly benefit any Democrat, meaning that, by definition, this is NOT a partisan gerrymander.

However, I also did agree that there almost certainly would be more aesthetically pleasing ways to draw District 84 and the districts adjacent to it.
That now has been done, and in showing you the proposed final map of Districts 76, 83 and 84, let me acknowledge the assistance of Rep. Hamm, the Republican House member who represents the 84th District and who shared his thoughts, particularly regarding the communities of interest in Union, Lycoming and Sullivan Counties.

The Pairing of Republican Incumbents.

Probably the most vocal criticism of the preliminary map was directed at what was labeled the disproportionate pairing of Republican incumbents – which, in that map, involved six such pairings or twelve Republican incumbents. In earlier meetings, I explained that a majority party naturally would experience a higher level of pairings; I showed, because so many Republican incumbents live very near district lines, how easy it would have been to target more of them if that had been our goal; and I offered two different points of comparison. The first was the redistricting plan that had been recently approved by the Virginia Supreme Court and pitted nearly half of the sitting legislative members against each other; and the second was the preliminary maps that had been submitted by Fair Districts PA and Amanda Holt, each of which pitted 36 Republican incumbents against each other, compared to the twelve in our preliminary plan.

Today, though, I want to talk about what has happened since then, and to do so, I want to return to the preliminary House map and look, in particular, to the western part of the state.

- Let me first call your attention to the Southwest corner of the state, where you will see the pairing of a Democrat and a Republican in Greene and Washington Counties and a pairing of two Republican incumbents in Westmoreland County. Creating such pairings was necessary to deal with populations losses in that region – which, after all, is the principal purpose of reapportionment. However, let me be clear in saying that the particular pairings were not made by the Commission but came from the caucuses.

- The preliminary map also paired two Republican incumbents in northern Washington County, and that was done by my team and me, as part of an effort not to split the border between Allegheny and Washington Counties. However, a bipartisan group of four members of the House – Representatives Gaydos, Ortitay, Kinkead and Kulik -- made a persuasive, professional presentation, supported by submissions from local officials, about the damage that might be done unless we retreated from that decision. To be clear, this was not a generic plea but one that focused on distinctive regional needs, including coordinated responses to flooding, key economic development initiatives that cross county lines, and the needs of the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport. I will say that, for me, their approach was one of the high points of this entire process.

We found it to be persuasive, so we re-designed our plan for that region, permitted the cut of the border between the two counties – and, in the process, unpaired the Republican incumbents and also were able to eliminate some municipal splits.
Moving north to the area of Butler, Lawrence and Mercer Counties, I first need to show you what a “mapping mess” this region is in the map that was enacted ten years ago. Butler County is an area that has experienced strong growth and is perfectly sized for three full House districts. However, under the 2012 plan, Butler County was divided into seven House districts, with only two of those representatives living within the County. Similarly, Mercer and Lawrence Counties together are perfectly sized for three full House districts. However, under the 2012 plan, those two counties were divided into five districts and partial districts, including a district that stretches from Lawrence County through Mercer, Crawford and Erie Counties to Lake Erie.
In our preliminary plan, we treated Butler County alone and treated Lawrence and Mercer together as a two-county unit and made maps accordingly. However, after the preliminary map was released, we did begin to receive comments explaining that there were communities of interest that crossed county lines in that region and, with the encouragement and help of the Republican caucus leadership, we ultimately treated the area as a three-county unit, producing this map and eliminating another pairing of Republican incumbents.
I hope this conveys some sense that this was a thoughtful process, not an exercise in targeting incumbents of either party. To summarize where we stand on the pairings of Republican incumbents, there are some pairings that were suggested to us because one incumbent of the pair has announced plans to retire. Putting those to the side, there are at most three sets of Republican incumbents paired against each other in the House map that is being advanced as our final plan – which, given the size of the House, by most standards, certainly is not out-of-line.

Community Impact

McCandless and Mechanicsburg, as a way of highlighting their opposition to the splits in those communities and others in the preliminary plan. Those hearings, quite predictably, generated citizen comments directed to those issues.

Among them was a request for information from a North Allegheny High School student who was writing an article for her school newspaper about the splits of the Town of McCandless and the North Allegheny School District. She did not realize that, when I was her age, I lived in McCandless Township and attended North Allegheny. And I am sad to say that while we were able to cure the municipality split, the final plan could not make the school district whole.

So, we eliminated the McCandless and Mechanicsburg splits, as well as some of the other municipal splits in our preliminary plan. Other examples include Moon, Murrysville and Horsham, all of which had been the subject of comment. But what everyone needs to understand about this process is that when a cut is eliminated in one municipality, it most often is just moved to another municipality. As I noted earlier, there are 2,560 municipalities in Pennsylvania and inevitably some will need to be split.

Statistical Unfairness

The effort of the House Republican caucus to discredit the Commission’s preliminary plan rested heavily on the report and testimony of the only witness they presented during the hearing devoted to expert witnesses. The two main themes of his testimony were the use of statistical simulations in an attempt to establish that our plan was an unfair partisan gerrymander and the offering of general and unsupported conclusions about the dilution of the voting influence of minority groups.

A half-century ago, I was a math major, but I claim no expertise in statistical simulations. A quarter-century ago, I taught courses in civil procedure, evidence and trial advocacy, each of which dealt with the qualifications and testimony of expert witnesses, but that work, too, is dated and I would not claim any current expertise.

However, I have decades of distinctive experience that is directly relevant to this particular dimension of the Commission’s work – for much of my career, one of my most important responsibilities was to review the academic work of faculty members -- at all levels and across all disciplines, in one of this country’s leading research universities -- in connection with such important professional decisions as recruitment, promotion, the award of tenure, and elevation to the ranks of distinguished faculty.

When I reviewed the resume of the young faculty member called as an expert by the House Republican caucus, there were positive features of his record that stood out, including the fact that he has written articles in areas of interest to me. However, what really caught my attention is that this academic expert has not published a single academic article in the areas for which his expert testimony was being presented.

Contrast that with the truly amazing record of Prof. Kosuke Imai, who was the House Democrats’ first witness and is regarded by many to be the world’s leading quantitative political scientist. He was on the Princeton faculty for fifteen years, where he was the founder of its Program in Statistics and Machine Learning. He now is at Harvard, where he is the first faculty member in that university’s history to hold appointments in both the Department of Government and the Department of Statistics. Not only does he have an outstanding publication record in the field that was the subject of his testimony, but he actually developed the algorithm used by the House Republicans’ witness to analyze our preliminary plan.

Prof. Imai found three things when he analyzed the study that was conducted by the House Republicans’ witness: (1) he could not replicate the results, which raises questions; (2) when he used the algorithm that he had developed to assess the preliminary plan himself, he found that plan to be less of a statistical outlier than the House Republicans had claimed; and (3) that became even more true when he factored in racial data. In fact, he concluded that when “majority-minority districts are considered, there is no empirical evidence that the preliminary plan is a partisan gerrymander.”
Also called by the House Democrats was Prof. Christopher Warshaw, a faculty member from the George Washington University Department of Political Science, who also held an appointment at MIT. Prof. Warshaw is a Pennsylvania native whose expert opinion was cited by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in the 2018 League of Women Voters case. He has published papers directly related to his testimony and also is a member of the Advisory Board of Plan Score. His three conclusions about the Preliminary Plan all were very positive. This is what he said:

- The plan is likely to be responsive to shifts in voter preferences;
- On this plan, the party that wins the majority of the votes is likely to usually win the majority of the seats; and
- Based on three methods of projecting future elections and four different, generally accepted partisan bias metrics, I find that the plan is fair, with just a small pro-Republican bias.

John Nagle, a professor emeritus from Carnegie Mellon University, had appeared as a citizen-witness at one of our earlier hearings and returned in that role in January. Dr. Nagle was a professor of physics and the biological sciences at Carnegie Mellon and used statistical simulations extensively in his work. Interestingly, though this was not his original field, he now has published four directly relevant papers in Election Law, a top-ranked, peer-reviewed political science journal. He also has invented two of the partisan bias metrics used by Dave’s Redistricting App.

In addition to his more scientific observations, Dr. Nagle offered a down-to-earth, but thought-provoking, perspective on the methods employed by the House Republicans’ witness. To quote: “The fallacy of averaging the ensemble of simulations can be revealed by an analogy. A professional basketball coach could consider 1,000 people who know how to play the game and then randomly choose an average one to play center. That is like choosing a plan from many simulated plans in the middle of the ensemble of simulated plans. Or the coach could hire Lebron James. That is like picking the LRC proposed plan.”

The Use of Racial Data

At the very beginning of his report, the House Republicans’ witness declared that his “simulation process ignores all . . . racial considerations when drawing districts.” That is a puzzling choice, since, under certain circumstances, the Commission is required to take account of racial considerations and in a broader set of circumstances is permitted to do so. Presumably, that is why Prof. Imai included such data in his simulations.

Neither the fact that his simulations included no racial data nor the fact that this is another area in which he has no academic publications to his credit kept the House Republicans’ witness from basing much of his analysis on the sweeping theme that, if minority-group voters are spread across multiple legislative districts, their influence is inevitably diluted. Of course, all of us know that voter-influence can be diluted either by cracking or by packing and, under the law, knowing where the correct balance can be struck requires an intensive local appraisal, which the Republicans’ witness did not perform.

To conduct such an analysis, the House Democrats retained Dr. Matt Barreto, one of the country’s leading scholars of Latino politics and of the Voting Rights Act. Prof. Barreto is a faculty member with appointments in both Political Science & Chicana / Chicano Studies at UCLA, where he also is the Faculty Director of the UCLA Voting Rights Project. In analyzing the 2012 House map that currently is in place, Dr. Barreto said this:

- Multiple Black-performing and Latino-performing districts are packed and exhibit wasted Minority votes, which results in vote-dilution; and
- Given growth of the Minority population in certain regions of the state, it is clear that existing Minority districts should be unpacked and that new Minority-performing districts [should be] created to comply with the [Voting Rights Act] VRA.

In analyzing this Commission’s preliminary plan, Dr. Baretto concluded, “Minority-performing districts in the preliminary plan will perform for minority voters.” That, of course, was very important to us because, as I said when the Commission approved the preliminary plan, “This plan includes seven minority opportunity districts – true VRA districts, minority influence districts, and coalition districts – in which there is not an incumbent, creating special opportunities” for the election of minority-preferred candidates.

I probably should add, for the record, that the House Republican caucus did belatedly offer the written report of a second expert who took issue with some of Prof. Baretto’s work. However, even though they had earlier identified this expert as a witness they did not deliver his report as scheduled or make that witness available for questioning by the Commission, but Prof. Baretto did offer his own powerful and persuasive reply.

The Commission’s efforts to create these districts also were hailed by those who probably have the best-informed insights – the three Latino members of the current House of Representatives and the leadership of the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus, which has served, since 1973, as “an information and advocacy vehicle to advance the interests of African American, Latino, and other people of color of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.”
This is some of what Representatives Danillo Burgos, Angel Cruz and Manuel Guzman said in their letter to the Commission:

“Since the approval of the preliminary plan for Pennsylvania’s state House of Representatives on December 16, 2021, there has been a significant amount of discussion about how this map impacts communities of color across the Commonwealth. As Latino members of the House we feel compelled to address these important concerns.

“We applaud the work that you have done to ensure these communities, which have been underrepresented in the legislature for far too long, are fairly represented. . . .

“The LRC’s Preliminary Plan is responsive to [the] growth of the Latino population in many important ways. Statewide, this plan creates nine districts in which Latino communities should be able to elect their candidates of choice. Three of those districts will be open seats with no incumbent member, meaning a Latino candidate of choice would not need to overcome the power of incumbency in order to be elected.

“. . . Latino representation is lacking in Pennsylvania, particularly when you consider the growth that has occurred across Pennsylvania over the last decade. The Preliminary Plan for House Districts makes major strides in correcting this injustice and restoring fairness in representation in Pennsylvania. As Latino members of the House, we embrace the goal of the LRC and applaud their work. We look forward to serving in a more diverse legislature.”

Representative Donna Bullock, the Chair of the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus, sent a letter that, though addressed to me, really was intended for the entire Commission. Let me quote briefly from it.

“\textquote{I have watched the reapportionment process closely. I am truly impressed by the process . . . and the commitment to fairness and transparency that you have demonstrated in the creation of a preliminary map. I am pleased to fully endorse this preliminary plan [as] responsive to the growth of communities of color across the Commonwealth.}

“As many have noted, statewide the number of Pennsylvanians who identify as Black, Hispanic, Asian or multi-racial increased by more than 800,000 since the last census, while the White population decreased by more than 540,000. . . .

“In addition to preserving and expanding districts in which a racial minority group makes up the majority of the population, the preliminary plan takes the important step of including coalition districts.

“These districts, in which diverse communities of color make up a majority or plurality of the population, recognize the commonalities of Black, Latino, Asian and Indigenous Pennsylvanians and will allow these communities to fully realize their political power. . . .

“I want to thank you . . . for your tireless efforts in the redistricting-cycle and for recognizing that the diversity of this Commonwealth is a strength. Your efforts have led to a plan that will uplift – rather than dilute – our voices.”
The Senate Map

Similar efforts were undertaken in our work on the Senate map. Because Senate districts are so much larger, though, that process is far more challenging.

Our preliminary Senate map included the foundation for what was an inspiring idea advanced by Majority Leader Ward – moving a district into the Lehigh Valley to create a Hispanic-influence district there. To maximize the Hispanic population in that district would have required stretching the district from Allentown in Lehigh County to include Bethlehem and other communities in Northampton County. Taking that step drew questions and criticisms from the involved communities, from elected officials and from some good-governance groups, so we decided not to take that step now.
However, our new Senate District 14 does already present opportunities for influence. Its Hispanic voting age population is 26.37%, and its Black voting age population is 6.37%. From population growth trends, state-wide and in that region, those numbers will only continue to grow. Consistent with our efforts in the House, it also is a district with no incumbent.
The most dramatic change in the Senate map, since our approval of the preliminary plan, is the creation of a new Hispanic-influence District in Philadelphia. District 2 has a Hispanic voting age population of 36.75% and a Black voting age population of 24.1%.

Conclusion

Because the Super Bowl is coming soon, I thought it might be appropriate to close with a quote from Vince Lombardi – the late, legendary Hall of Fame coach and the person after whom the Super Bowl trophy is named. Coach Lombardi said, “Perfection is not attainable, but if we chase perfection, we can catch excellence.”
As has been said before, there is no such thing as a perfect map. There also is no such thing as a perfect process. What I can say, though, is that no one involved in this effort just wanted to get the job done. Instead, we wanted to do the job well, and I believe we have succeeded. By virtually any measure these are very good maps that are fair, that responsive to the requirements of the law, and that will serve the people of Pennsylvania well for the next ten years.
The Statewide population = 13,002,700

RE: Preliminary Reapportionment Plan

Dear Acting Secretary Chapman:

With this letter, I am delivering to you for filing, pursuant to Pennsylvania Constitution Article II, Section 17(c), the Final Reapportionment Plan adopted by a majority vote of the Pennsylvania Legislative Reapportionment Commission at a public meeting in the Capitol in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania on February 4, 2022. I also enclose data showing “the population of the senatorial and representative districts having the smallest and largest population and the percentage variation of such districts from the average population for senatorial and representative districts” for purposes of the advertisements required by Pennsylvania Constitution Article II, Section 17(i).

I would appreciate your acknowledgement of receipt on the following page.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Mark A. Nordenberg
Chair

cc: The Honorable Jonathan M. Marks
The Honorable Sari Stevens
The Honorable Kerry A. Benninghoff
The Honorable Joanna E. McClinton
The Honorable Kim L. Ward
The Honorable Jay Costa
I acknowledge receipt of the Preliminary Reapportionment Plan and population data transmitted with the above letter.
