UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

SUSAN SOTO PALMER, et. al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
STEVEN HOBBS, et. al.,
Defendants,
and
JOSE TREVINO, ISMAEL CAMPOS, and
ALEX YBARRA,
Intervenor-Defendants.

Case No.: 3:22-cv-05035-RSL
Judge: Robert S. Lasnik

PLAINTIFFS’ RESPONSE TO INTERVENOR-DEFENDANTS’
MOTION TO SUSPEND
REMEDIAL PROCEEDINGS OR ORDER AN EVIDENTIARY HEARING

INTRODUCTION

At this late stage, Intervenor-Defendants (“Intervenors”) now raise two new arguments that could have been raised at any time in the last four months, in yet another attempt to delay relief in this case. First, Intervenors argue that their September 8, 2023 notice of appeal of this Court’s liability determination divested this Court of jurisdiction over the remedial proceedings. This is wrong and should be rejected. Second, Intervenors request an evidentiary hearing. But the parties have had an opportunity to submit proposed maps, briefing, and expert disclosures, no material

1 facts are in dispute, and the Court has already ordered an oral argument for February 9 and a 2 hearing in March where all parties can effectively be heard. As a result, Intervenors’ motion should 3 be denied.

4 ARGUMENT

5 I. This Court Has Jurisdiction Over the Remedial Proceedings.

6 This Court has jurisdiction to impose a remedial plan notwithstanding the appeal of this 7 Court’s liability ruling. The notice of appeal divests the district court of jurisdiction only over
 8 “those aspects of the case involved in the appeal.” Griggs v. Provident Consumer Disc. Co., 459
 9 U.S. 56, 58 (1982) (per curiam). The purpose of this divestiture rule is to “promote judicial 10 economy and avoid the confusion of having the same issues before two courts simultaneously.”
 11 United States v. Phelps, 283 F.3d 1176, 1181 n.5 (9th Cir. 2002). This partial divestiture accords
 12 with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 62(d) which authorizes a district court to “modify . . . or grant 13 an injunction on terms . . . that secure the [non-appealing] party’s rights” while an appeal of a 14 permanent injunction is pending.
 15

16 Intervenors concede that “an appeal from a supervisory order does not divest the district 17 court of jurisdiction to continue its supervision.” Dkt. # 258 at 4 (quoting Hoffman ex rel NLRB v.
 18 Beer Drivers & Salesmen’s Local Union, 536 F.2d 1268, 1276 (9th Cir. 1976)); see also Nat. Res.
 19 Def. Council, Inc. v. Sw. Marine Inc., 242 F.3d 1163, 1166 (9th Cir. 2001) (holding that district 20 court retains jurisdiction during pendency of appeal to preserve or modify injunction as distinct 21 from re-adjudicating the merits of the case). That concession confirms this Court’s jurisdiction
 22 over the remedial phase. In cases such as this, where the district court supervises an “ongoing 23 course of conduct,” it retains jurisdiction to do so and enter remedial injunctions—even where it
 26

1 “acts upon or modifies the order from which the appeal was taken.” Board of Education of St.
2 Louis v. State of Missouri, 936 F.2d 993, 996-96 (8th Cir. 1991) (internal quotation marks and 3 citation omitted). Indeed, just a month ago, the Eighth Circuit issued a ruling confirming a district
4 court’s remedial jurisdiction under the circumstances present here. See Order, Turtle Mountain
5 Band of Chippewa Indians v. N.D. Leg. Assembly, No. 23-3697 (Dec. 20, 2023).

7 Moreover, the Ninth Circuit has both denied Intervenors’ requested stay of the remedial
8 process, and at Intervenors’ request, acknowledged this Court’s jurisdiction over the remedial
9 phase and put merits briefing in abeyance “pending the district court’s order adopting a remedial
10 map.” Dkt. # 247, 261. In fact, in their abeyance request, Intervenors represented to the Ninth
11 Circuit that an abeyance was appropriate because the remedial process was proceeding here, 12 would not prejudice plaintiffs, and they wanted to brief both liability and remedy at the same time.
13 See, e.g., Appellants’ Motion to Hold Briefing in Abeyance, Soto Palmer v. Trevino, No. 23-
14 35595, (9th Cir. Jan. 5, 2024), ECF No. 48. Intervenors’ opposite request to this Court belies their 15 representation to the Ninth Circuit. Further, in light of the Ninth Circuit’s order, pausing remedial 16 proceedings now would effectively grant Intervenors the meritless stay they’ve requested and been 17 denied multiple times here and at the Ninth Circuit. See Dkt. # 247. It would also prejudice
18 Plaintiffs and Washington voters by causing confusion and jeopardizing a non-dilutive map for 19 the 2024 election, as this Court has enjoined the current version of LD 15 from being utilized in 20 the upcoming election.
21

23 In addition, the remedial map is not an aspect of the pending appeals. No notice of appeal
24 regarding remedy has been filed (nor could it), and the issues currently on appeal concern this 25 Court’s finding that the Gingles preconditions were met, and that the totality of the circumstances
26

1 demonstrated an unequal opportunity for Latino voters to elect candidates of choice in violation of 2 Section 2 of the VRA. Dkt. # 218 at 28.<sup>1</sup> Thus, this Court is properly within its authority to modify
3 the injunction of the enacted map and maintain its supervisory role of the remedial process.

4 This retention of remedial authority is standard practice in redistricting cases. See, e.g.,
5 Virginia House of Delegates v. Bethune-Hill, 139 S. Ct. 1945, 1950 & n.1 (describing how 6 remedial phase advanced as the Supreme Court entertained an appeal from injunction); Turtle
7 Mountain Band of Chippewa Indians v. Howe, 2023 WL 9116675 (8th Cir. Dec. 15, 2023)
8 (denying stay of lower court remedial proceedings pending appeal); Williams v. City of Texarkana, 9 32 F.3d 1265, 1267 (8th Cir. 1994) (affirming district court’s Section 2 liability determination and 10 subsequent remedial order where remedial process occurred after filing of liability appeal); 11 Holloway v. City of Virginia Beach, 21-1533, Dkt. # 29 (4th Cir. July 12, 2021) (granting abeyance 12 pending remedial proceedings in district court); Personhuballah v. Alcorn, 155 F. Supp. 3d 552, 13 557 (E.D. V.A. 2016) (three-judge court) (rejecting argument that notice of appeal of liability 14 determination divested district court of jurisdiction to impose remedial plan), application for stay
15 denied, Wittman v. Personhuballah, 577 U.S. 1125 (2016) (Mem.). Indeed, because the current 16 map is permanently enjoined, and Intervenor’s efforts to stay that injunction were denied, this 17 Court must act to ensure that a map is in place before the 2024 elections. See Personhuballah, 155
18 F. Supp. 3d at 557; Wise v. Lipscomb, 437 U.S. 535, 540 (1978) (holding that, after a violation is 19 found, “[w]hen those with legislative responsibilities do not respond, or the imminence of a state 20
21
22
23
24

25 <sup>1</sup> Intervenor’s lack of standing to even bring an appeal is of course also a key threshold issue for 26 the Ninth Circuit to address. See Hollingsworth v. Perry, 570 U.S. 693, 705 (2013).

1 election makes it impractical for them to do so, it becomes the unwelcome obligation of the federal
2 courts” to devise a remedial map).

3 In arguing that this Court lacks jurisdiction, Intervenors incorrectly read Coinbase, Inc. v.
4 Bielski, and mischaracterize Plaintiffs’ filings made pursuant to this Court’s remedial order.<sup>2</sup>
5 Contrary to Intervenors’ suggestions, Coinbase applied only in the arbitration context, and 6 specifically to an interlocutory appeal. In Coinbase, the “sole question” was whether a trial could 7 proceed in the district court while the question of arbitrability was on appeal. Coinbase, Inc. v.
8 Bielski, 599 U.S. 736, 740 (2023). In holding that the answer to that question was no, the Court
9 explained that the appeal of arbitrability is essentially an appeal on the question of whether a trial
10 can take place in the district court at all. Id. at 741. The Court said nothing that bears on the 11 circumstances of this case. Intervenors misinterpret the holding of Coinbase and conflate the 12 question it addressed (must a case go to arbitration rather than trial) with a completely different 13 one (can a remedial process proceed while the liability determination is on appeal). Dkt. # 258 at 14 3.
15

17 Intervenors attempt to characterize Plaintiffs’ proposed remedial maps as a motion for 18 relief is also unavailing. Id. at 6-7. Plaintiffs’ proposed maps were submitted pursuant to this
19 Court’s remedial order, Dkt. # 230, and Intervenors’ liability appeal, Dkt. # 222, does not divest
20 this Court of jurisdiction over the remedial process. And in any event, Plaintiffs’ proposed 21
22
23

24 <sup>2</sup> Intervenors state that the jurisdictional argument did not occur to them until reading Plaintiffs’
25 opposition to the intervention motion of Senator Nikki Torres. But any jurisdictional issue with 26 Sen. Torres’ intervention is irrelevant here, as this Court denied Sen. Torres’ motion on timeliness, not jurisdictional grounds. Dkt. # 259.

1 remedial maps are not a “motion for relief;” they are a Court-ordered part of the ongoing process
2 to remedy a violation of federal law.<sup>3</sup>

3 Finally, the Eleventh Circuit’s decision in Wright v. Sumter Cnty. Bd. of Elections &
4 Registration, 979 F.3d 1282, 1303 (11th Cir. 2020), is irrelevant here. In that case, the appellate 5 court deemed the remedy and liability proceedings interconnected only “in light of the peculiar 6 posture of the case” and for the sole purpose of deciding what parts of the record the court would 7 consider in resolving the appeal. Id. at 1302. Because the court had already twice reversed the 8 district court’s liability rulings and specifically directed the lower court to begin remedial 9 proceedings, the court determined that it would consider both records in resolving the appeal. Id.
10 The case did not address, let alone lend support for, Intervenors’ jurisdictional theory.

12 The bottom line is this: this Court retains jurisdiction over the remedial process while 13 Intervenors appeal the liability finding. This Court and the Ninth Circuit have already denied
14 Intervenors’ motions to stay these proceedings, and this motion is little more than a restyled request
15 for the same previously denied relief. Intervenors also asked the Ninth Circuit to hold liability
16 briefing in abeyance pending the conclusion of the remedial process in this Court, which they now
17 ask this Court to suspend because of their Ninth Circuit appeal. Dkt. # 258. This brazen effort to 18 game the appellate rules and compound delay should be rejected. This Court has the authority—19 and the obligation—to proceed in the remedial process to ensure a map is in place in time for the 20 2024 election.
21
22

23
24 <sup>3</sup> Intervenors make reference to Plaintiffs’ proposed maps 1-5, submitted on December 1, Dkt. #
25 245-1, but perplexingly ignore the modified proposals 1A-5A submitted on December 22, Dkt. #
26 254-1. This omission undercuts Intervenors’ bizarre assertion that Plaintiffs’ initial remedial opening brief was a motion for relief.

1 II. No Dispute of Material Fact Exists, and the Court Has Already Ordered a Hearing and 2 Oral Argument.

3 There are no contested issues of material fact warranting an evidentiary hearing as the 4 Intervenor's claim. And, in any event, the Court has already received briefs and supporting 5 materials from the parties, scheduled an oral argument for the parties to be heard on remedial
6 proposals, and ordered that a hearing will be held in early March on the court-preferred remedial
7 map, see Dkt. # 246 at 3 (“The Court will, however, schedule a hearing in the beginning of March 8 to discuss the Court’s preferred remedial option”). No more is necessary here.

9 To begin, what Intervenor's claim are contested facts are not. Instead, Intervenor's raise a 10 mix of legal disputes, inconsequential quibbles, and topics they would “like to discuss.” Dkt. #
11 258 at n.2. These are a far cry from the material disputed facts about feasibility of asset division, 12 customer impact, shareholder effect, and societal benefit at issue in United States v. Microsoft
13 Corp., 253 F.3d 34, 101 (D.C. Cir. 2001), which Intervenor's cite on this point.

14 For example, Intervenor's identify as disputed facts Dr. Oskooii’s statement that the maps
15 he drew respect relevant redistricting criteria and the Court’s order, and Dr. Collingwood’s opinion
16 that Plaintiffs’ remedial maps comply with Section 2. Dkt. #258 at 9. But to the extent these issues
17 raise legal questions, those are for the Court to decide, and to the extent they raise technical 18 mapping questions, Intervenor's and their experts already had a chance to respond, and the Special 19 Master can address them. They also claim that the “location of incumbents” is contested, but that 20 is wrong. There is no identified factual dispute about incumbent addresses, and any addresses can 21 be verified easily by the Special Master with data from the Secretary of State. Next, they claim
22 that “adjusting partisan performance in non-Yakima Valley districts” is a contested fact, but that 23
25
26

1 was discussed at length in both parties' briefs and expert reports, is irrelevant to the issue at hand,
2 and is likewise verifiable or could be altered by the Special Master. Finally, Intervenors claim
3 "what data was consulted by the experts while creating and analyzing Plaintiffs' proposed remedial
4 maps," is contested. Not so. This data was fully disclosed and outlined in Plaintiffs' expert reports,
5 no material dispute actually exists. See id. at 9 n.2. In a footnote, Intervenors list further subjects
6 they "would like to discuss" with Plaintiffs' experts, but such a desire is irrelevant and has no basis
7 in the law. Dkt. # 258 at 9.

9 In any event, the parties have already been given sufficient opportunity to be heard. Each 10 party had the chance to submit remedial proposals, accompanying briefs, and expert materials.
11 Indeed, Intervenors submitted a response brief and expert report discussing Plaintiffs' proposals, 12 after declining to submit any maps of their own. Dkt. # 251, 252. See, e.g., Pac. Harbor Cap., Inc.
13 v. Carnival Air Lines, Inc., 210 F.3d 1112, 1118 (9th Cir. 2000) (holding that "[t]he opportunity 14 to brief the issue fully satisfies due process requirements"). Moreover, the Court has already
15 scheduled an oral argument on remedial proposals for February 9, in addition to a remedial hearing
16 that will take place in early March. These hearings, along with prior briefing and expert
17 disclosures, will provide an opportunity for all parties to be heard with regard to remedial proposals
18 and the remedial map that the Court prefers.

20 CONCLUSION

21 For the reasons stated above, Intervenors' motion to suspend remedial proceedings or order 22 an evidentiary hearing should be denied.
